WAR HERO IS NEAR DEATH IN WELL CAVE-IN

Jack Johnson Saved by "Shorty" Cutsford at Fourth and Jay Streets

RESCUER SCOOPS OUT SAND WITH BUCKET FOR AN HOUR

Ex-soldier Buried Up to Mouth, While Standing on Ladder

JACK JOHNSON, La Crosse war hero, narrowly escaped death Thursday night when he was imprisoned in a cave-in of an old well in the rear of the building at Fourth and Jay streets, formerly occupied by Nic Kaiser's saloon and which is now being torn down to clear a site for an oil and gasoline station.

Rescuer Works For Hour

For more than an hour Johnson's fellow-worker, "Shorty" Cutsford, worked frantically with a bucket, scooping the sand out of the well in an effort to release Johnson. Eventually enough sand was removed so that "Shorty" could pull Johnson out of the hole. In the pulling operation Johnson left his shoes and socks in the hole where they had been pulled off by the sand.

Johnson, who is one of the crew of men employed by Leslie Dorn, in charge of the razing of the building, and Cutsford remained in the job after supper, Thursday evening. They wanted to begin the removal of the building that night. The 20-foot well, a ladder was lowered to the bottom and Johnson stood on it as he removed the cutting and passed them up to "Shorty."

Thought Well Would Collapse

After about five feet of the hole had been removed, "Shorty" became suspicious and told Johnson that he thought the well was going to cave in and that Johnson had better get out. The hole Johnson said he didn't think it would, that he never heard of a well cave-in collapsing yet and continued with his work.

"Shorty" had carried a piece of the cutting to another part of the job when he heard Johnson yell. By the time he reached the well, only Johnson's head was visible, the sand completely filling the hole and coming as far up as Johnson's lips. He had both hands on the rungs of the ladder when the sand rushed upon him and he was able to keep the earth and sand out of his mouth by keeping it away every few seconds with his hands.

"Shorty" Starts to Scoop

"Shorty" pulled for him and started in to scoop the sand out of the well with a bucket. After working more than an hour he had removed enough so that Johnson could be pulled out. He was weak when hauled back to firm ground being exhausted by the pressure of the sand on his chest and lungs.

Johnson served overseas in the world war. He brought a French flag back to La Crosse with him. "I saw all kinds of service in France," said Johnson. "Artillery, machine gun, infantry and plenty of mustard gas but I never had an experience like down in the well when the sand shot down upon me."

Second Dawn To Dusk Flight Fails

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 20.—(By The Associated Press.)—Battling unflinchingly to the end in his second race against time to span the American continent between dawn and dusk, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, army aviator, has lost again before the odds of insurmountable obstacles which brought him down with a leaking oil cooler at Rock Springs, Wyoming, late Thursday.

Winging his way westward across perilous Wyoming mountain ranges at the terrific rate of 170 miles an hour after covering more than two-thirds of the 2,670 mile flight, the lieutenant was forced to descend with oil pouring from the plane's tank in bucketfuls and muzzling fumes engulfing the machine and weakening its interior pilot.

Delayed at Cheyenne

Racked with nausea and in a virtually semi-conscious condition, the aviator rested at Cheyenne while mechanics soldered the leaking oil tanks. Delayed for nearly an hour over his original schedule while stopping there, Lieut. Maughan hoped off determined to make a supreme effort to cover the stretch of nearly 1,000 miles that separated him from his goal, but was forced down at Rock Springs.

Expressing keen disappointment and noticeably discouraged at the outcome of his second attempt within ten days to cross the continent in a day, the lieutenant took heart in a moral victory and in the hope that he

NO MORE ATTEMPTS THIS YEAR; DAYS GETTING TOO SHORT

WASHINGTON.—The army air service announced Friday that the attempt to make a daylight to dusk flight across the continent, in which Lieut. Russell L. Maughan has failed twice, had been called off for the year.

No explanation accompanied the announcement, but it is understood that the shortening of available daylight period during another interval of preparation would be sufficient to make it improbable that Lieut. Maughan could reach San Francisco before dark.

might still have another chance to fulfill his life-time ambition.

"It was the oil cooler," Lieut. Maughan told an Associated Press correspondent as he rested against a

WHALEN MERCHANT IS HERE TO WED AN ARKANSAS NURSE; HAS NEVER SEEN THE WOMAN

WHEN the Burlington train from the south arrives in La Crosse Saturday morning, it will bring to town a woman who before the sun sets hopes to be the blushing bride of a Minnesota merchant. Neither have seen each other, although they have exchanged photographs and many letters.

The bride-to-be is Susan Loudermilk of Rogers, Arkansas, and the bridegroom-to-be is Claus K. Nordness of La Crosse. Nordness, a Minnesota native, made application for a marriage license Thursday at the office of County Clerk Staats.

Both have been married before. The woman's husband died some years ago. Since then she has been making her living nursing, being a graduate nurse. Nordness' first wife obtained a divorce from him in Preston, Minn., in July, 1921. He is 49 years old and she is 48.

Nordness had two pictures of his bride-to-be. They were the pictures of a comely looking woman of middle age. He also had a bundle of letters from her, each beginning, "Dear Honey Bunch." That was as much as he would show of them.

"How did you get acquainted with the lady?" Nordness was asked.

"Oh, that wasn't hard to do," he replied, grinning.

Nordness wasn't sure just who would marry them on Saturday. All he was sure of was that they would be wedded soon after the lady's arrival.

DRY LEAGUE HEAD IN NEW YORK IS INDICTED BY JURY

William H. Anderson is Charged With Grand Larceny, Forgery and Extortion

NEW YORK.—A grand jury Friday indicted William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New York, on charges of grand larceny and forgery and then handed down a presentment calling for a legislative investigation of the league's activities since 1912, when Anderson became superintendent.

The grand larceny charges on which two separate indictments were returned, were that Anderson obtained from the league $4,500 in March, 1921, and $1,750 in February, 1921. The forgery indictment charged him with ordering falsification of the league's books to conceal receipt of $4,400 as split on commissions due O. Bertsall Phillips, former solicitor for the league.

Anderson entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $5,000 bail to cover all the indictments. His counsel said bail would be furnished at once.

Assistant District Attorney Pecora announced that in addition to the grand larceny and forgery indictments returned, the grand jury had voted two indictments for extortion, based on alleged collection by Anderson of "splits" on commissions earned by O. Bertsall Phillips, former solicitor of the league. These indictments, he said, will be filed Wednesday.

JOHN MEDINGER, JR., IS DISMISSED FRIDAY BY JUDGE BRINDLEY

John Medinger, Jr., was freed from the county jail on Friday by Judge Brindley, after the court lectured him on how he should behave himself. No charge was made against him by Lund. Medinger was taken into custody by the sheriff Wednesday night after the sheriff and the police had gone to Mormon Coulee road to investigate a report that Medinger's wife had been injured when thrown off a motorcycle by Medinger. Medinger at first resisted efforts of the sheriff to talk to him and is alleged to have pulled a small calibre gun on the sheriff.

TRAFFIC DOUBLES

OSHKOSH, Wis.—A traffic census taken on the Oshkosh-Pond du Lac road, Highway 15, on Wednesday, shows nearly double the automobile travel counted a year ago. During that single day 3,364 vehicles passed a given point, as compared with 1,713 on July 19, 1922. The increase in machines was 1,651, or nearly 100 percent. Of the total checked, 2,621 were Wisconsin cars and 580 were cars from outside the state. There were 101 motor trucks, 28 motorcycles and 34 horse drawn rigs.

HARDING PARTY NEARING END OF VISIT TO ALASKA

Trip to Glacier Near Cordova Features Friday Program of Entertainment

ON BOARD U. S. S. HENDERSON, with President Harding.—By The Associated Press.—A visit to Cordova Ocean terminus of one of the two railways piercing Alaska's interior, was the feature of today's program for President Harding, who is nearing the end of the first visit to Alaska made by a chief executive of the United States.

At Cordova the president was expected to take the Copper river and Northwestern railway for a run out to the Miles and Childs Glaciers. These are on opposite sides of Copper river at Mile 49, where the stream is planned by a mammoth steel bridge in concrete. That place is said to be the only spot in the world where one glacier can be reached by train.

The time at sea is bringing Mrs. Harding back to health, according to her physicians. Both the Hardings are trying to store strength for strenuous days on the Pacific coast after they land at Vancouver, B. C., Thursday.

SANITY PROBE FOR MARY LAWAND MAY BE ASKED OF COURT

WATSAU, Wis.—Mary Lawand, awaiting trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill and murder, has the appearance of a county prisoner. She is quiet, apparently not in the least uneasy, and talks calmly and sanely on most subjects. As to her alleged assault upon her stepmother, she has little to say except when questioned to reiterate the confession given the Associated Press Thursday. She still persists that she did not go to the family home with the intent either to rob or to murder, and says she just simply cannot understand why she attacked her stepmother.

Judge A. H. Reid is out of the city, probably for ten days, and no further action will be taken until his return. It is practically certain that an application will be made for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the sanity of the girl.

RUSSIA ACCEDES IN AGREEMENT FOR STRAITS CONTROL

bedpost in a hotel here and told the story of his flight.

Leak Becomes Worse

"I thought we had it fixed at Cheyenne," he continued, "but it became worse and I drove on. Twenty miles out of Rock Springs it began to leak in bucketfuls and I thought it best to quit."

"Wasn't it wonderful," he speculated, "I think it was a wonderful thing even if I didn't complete the task. But those things happen and it was one of those things over which we have no control."

Lieut. Maughan's plane was at the air field here today undergoing repair work to the oil tank, and mechanics expected to have it ready for flying within a few hours. After a good night's rest the aviator today planned to cross the border of his home state, Utah, and visit his mother and wife.

Visit Family in Utah

His first act after coming to the hotel here from the air field after turning over his machine to the two attendants who were the only witnesses of the flight's termination, was to call on long distance telephone his mother at Logan, Utah, and his wife at Heber City, Utah.

After visiting them and other friends in his home town, Logan, not forgetting the town printers, for whom so many years he was a "printer's devil," Lieut. Maughan probably will take off on a return flight to Mitchell field via the route he took in attempting his transcontinental flight.

Lieut. Maughan referred disgustedly to reports from the east that his failure to complete the flight might have been due to tampering with the oil before he started on his trip.

Hit Speed of 200 Miles

"It was merely a case of the result of vibration caused by steam," he asserted, carrying out his plan of conserving his speed for the latter part of the journey. Lieut. Maughan left the border of the Rocky mountain region traveling at a tremendous rate and surpassing the time he made during the first three legs of his flight. It was estimated that he reached a maximum rate of over 200 miles an hour between Cheyenne and Rock Springs.

On the basis of the total elapsed time since he left Mitchell field, Lieut. Maughan spanned the first 1,650 miles of the trip from the starting terminal to Cheyenne at an average speed of 135.6 miles an hour. Altogether he covered a total of 1,925 miles, the distance by air line from Mitchell field to Rock Springs. For actual flying time during the flight, excluding the time for stops at the three terminals, it was estimated he averaged about 155 miles an hour. He was in the air 12 hours and 9 minutes.

Ready to Try Again

Lieut. Maughan was to make his fourth stop in the salt beds at Salsburg, Utah, where an aviation station is maintained. From there he was to hop off for San Francisco. A 645 mile stretch remained for the aviator between Rock Springs and San Francisco.

He asserted he was ready to "try again."

HELGE STEFFRUD IS THE NEW OWNER OF CLIFFWOOD INN

Cliffwood inn, on State road, scene of the fatal shooting of Chicago Jack Daley by his wife, Elsie Daley, now is the property of Helge G. Steffrud, according to a warranty deed just recorded with Register of Deeds Wachs. The property, comprising buildings and about three acres of land was deeded to R. S. Cowie and John E. Pohoryl, attorneys for Mrs. Daley, during her murder trial, as their fee for defending her. Steffrud is said to have paid approximately $6,000 for the property. It is understood that Steffrud does not intend to operate the roadside hotel but probably will rent it to other parties who will run the place. Several well-known persons in town have been mentioned as having rented the place but as yet no license has been issued by the town board of Shelby.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DAUGHERTY CALLED AS MORSE WITNESS

WASHINGTON.—A subpoena for the appearance of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty as a defense witness in the trial here of Charles W. Morse and others on charges of wartime shipping frauds was expected to be served Friday at Columbus, Ohio. The summons was prepared Thursday and mailed to the United States marshal at Columbus where the attorney general has been staying for several weeks.

Defense counsel have declined to indicate what evidence they desired to obtain from Mr. Daugherty, stating that the summons was issued at the personal request of Mr. Morse.

PANCHO VILLA IS SHOT DURING FIGHT AT RANCH

Famous Bandit Leader and Leader of Rebel Troops in Northern Mexico Killed by Secretary

HUNDRED CASUALTIES ARE REPORTED IN THE BATTLE

Man Who Killed Villa is Shot by Chieftain's Followers

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico.—By The Associated Press.—General Francisco (Pancho) Villa, commander of the rebel armies in northern Mexico for ten years, was shot and killed Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock at his big ranch at Camutillo, Durango, by Miguel Trillo, his secretary.

In the battle which followed Trillo was killed by men loyal to their slain chieftain. According to latest advices received from the ranch, the fight is still in progress.

More than 100 casualties have occurred in the sanguinary fighting which followed the shooting of Villa by Trillo. The latter is said to have become incensed at the former bandit leader and to have fired at him suddenly. Villa died almost immediately.

Trillo was fired upon by other men near the scene of the shooting and was killed a few minutes later.

Men who had rallied behind Trillo then engaged the loyal Villa troops and a general battle occurred within the ranch.

Villa had about 800 men on the ranch and all were trained in the handling of firearms, having followed the chieftain in his campaigns against the Obregon government just prior to his surrender and signing of the armistice with Obregon.

Has Stormy Career

A rise from bandit with a price on his head to one of the dominant figures in Mexico and a fall again to outlawry comprises the career of Francisco Villa, a man both loved and hated as no other has been in Mexico since the time of Benito Juarez.

Born in 1858 in the little mining town of Las Nieves, Durango, of poor parents, he followed the trade of butcher until the death of his father when he and his mother and sister went to Western Chihuahua. There he became a vaquero on one of the great cattle ranches and obtained the minute knowledge of the wild and mountainous country which enabled him to laugh at pursuit for many years.

Many stories are told of his first clash with the laws of Mexico but the most frequently related is that a captain in one of President Diaz' regiments won the heart of his sister and eloped with her without the formality of a marriage. Villa, according to the tale pursued the pair, forced a marriage, forced his newly acquired brother-in-law to sign his own death certificate and die his own enemy.

Shot him and occupied the mountains. Whatever the truth of this report, President Diaz placed a price on his head.

Villa's real name was Doroteo Arango, but he abandoned this, and became known as Villa among a band of fellow transgressors, which he gathered about him. He became a terror to the well-to-do of Northern Chihuahua, laughing at the attempts of federal troops and rurales to capture him. The spoils his band acquired from the rich land-owners and mining men were frequently shared with the poor peons and he never lacked a friendly warning when the officers of the law spread their traps for him.

ISLE LA PLUME CONVERTED INTO A SEA OF FIRE

Long Period of Drought Occasions Internal Smoldering at Island

ISLE LA PLUME, La Crosse's big artificial island at the foot of Market street built of the city's refuse for many years, has again taken on the aspect of a burning inferno volcano. Fire officials reported Friday that for the past number of years during a similar period of drought, internal fires have occurred at the island.

It was reported Friday that a crew of firemen have been working night and day for the past three days fighting the fire. It has necessitated the stretching of 2000 feet of hose across the marsh to the island where a fire of water for three days has failed to extinguish the smoldering fire deep under the surface.

The flames are believed to have originated from brush and refuse set afire by children on the surface, the fire later spreading into the combustible makeup of the island because of the extended drought for the past month.

The cause of the fire has been investigated by police officers, who claim they have on hand names of boys responsible for setting the refuse on fire. Prosecution of the parties is being temporarily held up, police announced.

WILL ASK FRANCE TO REDUCE FORCES OCCUPYING RUHR

Germany Expected to Drop Policy of Resistance as Result of Concession

NOTE READY FOR SUBMISSION TO GOVERNMENTS BY EVENING

Copy also Expected to be Sent to Washington

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—Additional alterations were made Friday in the draft reply to Germany's reparation memorandum by the British cabinet. Unless it should seem expedient to make some eleventh hour changes, the document probably will be dispatched to the allied and American governments Friday.

It is understood that the suggested reply contains about 1,400 words and is up to the standard of cogency and forcefulness usually characterizing documents prepared by Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, and that it is marked by a most moderate and amiable tone. There is still some doubt as to whether the much discussed supplementary memorandum of an explanatory nature will be sent with the draft. The second document may be confined merely to the form of a covering letter, this point to be settled by the cabinet.

Features of Note

Among the multiplicity of forecasts offered by the political oracles it seems safe to accept the prediction that the note will deal with the appointment of an international commission of experts to appraise Germany's assets and that it will suggest to Germany that Great Britain is prepared to ask France to reduce the occupational forces to a minimum so that Germany's industrial and mining plants in that region shall be free to contribute to the payment of reparations. In return for this Germany will be expected to countermand all ordinances for passive resistance.

It is also considered certain that Great Britain will not offer to cancel the French, Italian and Belgian debts as suggested by some reports. This proposition never has been discussed with the allies and even if it had been it is considered entirely irrelevant to the reply to Germany's reparation note.

Seek World Commission

The present documents have broadly for their purpose the ultimate submission of the reparation problem to an international conference of plenipotentiaries to be held in the near future in Brussels, or some other equally acceptable city, according to the best information.

It is still uncertain whether the United States will be invited to such a conference, in view of its known reluctance to re-enter European politics.

Expect Germany to Agree

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—Some newspapermen here find no barrier in the official secretiveness which hitherto has prevented successful work of the credited political writers making known more than general indications of the trend of the German note deliberations.

Two newspapers make the assertion that they are able "to state definitely" what the British note will contain despite the fact that the British cabinet was not to meet until ten o'clock to decide upon the contents.

The Daily Sketch says that among others it knows of three. The first is submission to an international commission of the question of Germany's capacity to pay; second, a request to France to reduce the scope of its occupation of the Ruhr to its January dimensions—the so-called "invisible occupation"—in return for which Germany "will be expected" to abandon passive resistance; third, an offer by Great Britain to cancel the French, Italian and Belgian war debts due her.

The Daily Herald, labor mouthpiece, says that Great Britain will "demand" that Germany cease passive resistance and will suggest that France in return resume "invisible occupation," and agree to the creation of an international commission to consider reparations.

The note, it adds, will permit the government to approve the French occupation. It says that there is every reason to believe that Germany will accede to the demand.

FORMER SOLDIER SAVED FROM DEATH IN CAVE-IN

JACK JOHNSON AND HIS FRENCH WAR BRIDE

DELINQUENT GROUPS IN COLLEGES FOUND TO FAVOR EASY LIFE

Delinquency Not Indicative of Lack of Intelligence But of Disinclination to Work

EVANSTON, Ind., July 15.—Too little sleep, too much play, not enough study, too much leisure, fast eating and diversified thinking are factors that demoralize students and are responsible for the "delinquent groups" found in every university, according to a report made public by Professor Helen Thomas Howard of Northwestern University.

In Northwestern alone, out of 1,633 students in the college of liberal arts, Professor Howard has found a "delinquent group" of 265 composed of 166 men and 99 women. In other words, he points out, 16 out of every 100 students do not "pass." But delinquency does not necessarily imply lack of intelligence, the professor found.

"No result of our study," the Northwestern professor writes, "is more significant and interesting than the discovery that the average intelligence of the so-called delinquent group is quite as high as that of the general student body."

Students found to be delinquent are put on probation at Northwestern and have to make good or be dropped from the roster.

"The probationers," the investigator reports, "devote more time, as a whole, by their own confessions, to athletics, social activities, outside work, leisure, than do the freshmen, less time to sleep, campus activities, meals, classes and studies."

Among the total group of men interviewed, 15 were thought to be handicapped by "mental immaturity." Such comments on this Professor Howard remarks:

"These are boys who have, for the most part, been reared under easy circumstances and who have never been required to view life seriously. Such students have a distinctly childish attitude towards their class-room work. They have no intellectual interests, no definite ambitions, no sense of responsibility."

bility. In most of these cases, as might be expected, high-school preparation has been superficial and inadequate.

Illness, family troubles, and financial worries are among other causes leading to students being put on probation.

Professor Howard drew attention to the comparatively high percentage of delinquent students, using his figures to illustrate the serious situation in American university life today.

Mrs. Coyne had been beaten to death in bed. First investigation by the police failed to reveal traces of robbery, they said.

LOCAL DISCONTENT IS STILL EVIDENT IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Opposition to Bolshevik Rule
Not Wholly Dead and Keeps
Army on Watch

MOSCOW.—Few and perhaps not important as they are, just enough counter-revolutionary acts and plots have been revealed in Soviet Russia in the last few months to indicate that, on the one hand, all opposition to the Bolshevik regime has not died down, and on the other, that the communist government may be justified, from its standpoint in maintaining semi-martial law in some districts. Americans and other foreigners who spend a few weeks or months in Russia and find everything moving forward apparently smoothly under communist dictatorship, sometimes go home and report that everybody is contented with the present state of affairs. This seems true in Moscow and other central Russian cities, but a careful day-by-day perusal of the official newspapers shows that every now and then a plot pops up and that an undercurrent of opposition, weak but persistent, is running beneath the surface in many provinces.

One reads laconic announcements that two persons have been shot here, another there, some more in another place, for counter-revolutionary activity or participation in "banditry." This in the Ukraine and Cossack regions.

Once in a great while come announcements of more important plots, such as the one recently discovered in Georgia. This resulted in the execution of 15 persons, and had as its aim the separation of the entire Caucasus from Soviet Russia.

HUSKY CASHTON BOYS GET

EASY MONEY AT CARNIVAL

CASHTON, Wis. — Some farmer boys living near Cashton picked up some easy money at a carnival a few days ago. The strong man and the wrestler were offering $1.00 a minute for any one who could stay with them for ten minutes. Clarence and William Erickson, two husky young lads from Hall's Valley, decided to take home a few simoleons, so hopped into the ring. One stayed in two events, while the elder boy also earned $10. The carnival wrestlers did not want to put up the money, but Cashton sports who believed in fair play, forced them to do so.

200 DISABLED VETS ATTENDING SUMMER SCHOOL AT U. OF W.

Forty to be Graduated at End of Session; Jobs to be Secured for them

MADISON, Wis., July 20.—Approximately 200 disabled veterans of the World war are attending the University of Wisconsin summer session. They are registered in practically every department of the university, most of them even majoring in music. Most of them are from Wisconsin, but the number includes many from neighboring states.

Many of these students are taking agricultural courses while others are majoring in chemistry and engineering. Two are doing extensive research work on a new chemical element. Some of them have received recognition for proficiency in class work, and figures show that the percentage of this group placed on probation is very low, most of them getting good grades in spite of the handicap imposed on them by the war.

Forty federal board men will be graduated at the close of the session and will be placed in jobs where their disability will not interfere with their work. Many of these men have no complete their high school and college work in a comparatively short steady application they are able to time making high averages.

A Few of the Many BIG NEWS STORIES In This Week's Digest

Fight Is on for Democratic Nomination

In the analysis of The Digest's poll of Democratic leaders, there are many side-lights of picturesque interest. One Texas editor, for instance, says whimsically, "Those of us who are of the red-necked class are for McAdoo. Those of us who don't know what we want or how to get it are for Ford. The conservatives among us and those who want to go back to the old traditions of the party are for Underwood. Those of us who like our 'likker' are for Al Smith and so on.
It is great to be a Democrat." An intensely interesting news-feature this!

Less Prospect of Less Taxes

Just as the American public begins to feel a little optimistic over the surplus of $310,000,- 000.00, according to the Treasury report, with its prospect of lowered taxation, Senator Smoot, the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, declares, "I am opposed to a reduction in taxation."

RELATIVE to Fleischler's Cartoons, which are the newest addition to "Fun From the Press." Judging from the

La Follette Rides

CONSERVATIVE republicans of President Harding's organization will serve themselves poorly if they fail to read the significance of the Minnesota landslide. It is plain as day that it was a slide into the political lap of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Probably the organization entrenchments which held against Senator La Follette's presidential aspirations in 1912 will stand the shock of his new assault, but the fact remains that in 1924 he will lead a much larger army. In this case, too, he will come without the disrupting influence of another super-politician, the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

While Senator Johnson has a following, and Senator Borah is not unknown to popular favor, Senator La Follette looms head and shoulders over all who aspire to progressive leadership in the United States, and is recognized as the big figure of the movement in all states which have joined the revolt against the standardized G. O. P.

Brookhart in Iowa, Shipstead and now Magnus Johnson in Minnesota—they are not important in themselves. None of them has real scholarship, none leadership, none the mastery of constructive processes. They are merely boiled up in the distress of agricultural states. They are merely markers showing political sentiment in sections of the agricultural west. They will vote with the agricultural bloc, that is all. Frazier, to the westward, is probably a bigger mind and a more independent spirit, but he is the product of a local idea, rather than an inspirational force in the national movement.

Should the republican party do the conventional thing, which would be to renominate President Harding, it would seem that 1912 bids fair, in one way or another, to repeat itself in 1924. If the farmer-labor revolt does not take the form of a bolt from the republican national convention, it seems almost certain to result in a democratic victory by the individual bolting of republican voters to the democratic side.

President Harding has staked everything upon prosperity. Probably he has done what he thought best to promote prosperity. Whether on account of his efforts, or for other reasons, does not matter—there has been a considerable resumption of business success. The one weak spot is the farmer, whose conditions have failed to improve. On Wednesday we read the statement of Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee. It was that of a man between the devil and the deep sea. In one sentence he seemed to exult over the fact that democracy made no showing in Minnesota, leaving the field to the republicans. In the next he whistles through the graveyard with the observation that perhaps an increase in prosperity before 1924 would give the farmer "his sober second thought." It is for this latter, of course, that President Harding will play. If the administration can figure out any way to help the farmer between now and the presidential election, it probably will do so at any cost to its relations with the commercial east.

It is difficult to see how the republican party can sidetrack Mr. Harding without repudiating its own record. Yet much talk of a compromise candidate prevails in quarters from which the voice of authority is known to come. Old heads in the republican party realize what conservative republicanism is up against. The La Follette group holds the balance of power in the senate, and probably in the house. It may not be able to dictate legislation, but absolutely it can block legislation. From this vantage point, speaking to the country in the daily sessions of congress, its leaders can prepare the ground for a tremendously effective campaign.

If the old guards shall surrender, it will be by all means in its power seek to avoid Senator La Follette. Kenyon has been mentioned. It would prefer Johnson or Borah. It would regard any of these as the better of a bad bargain, of which to its notion La Follette could be by all odds the worst.

Senator La Follette is playing no schoolboy game in this situation. He saw the third party movement, always a hazard, looming at a moment when the better opportunity was presented within the republican party. Quietly, deftly, he turned the attention of political agitators away from the new party idea and centered interest in the boring from within process. He knows his name is first in all the states represented in the farm bloc, but he does not crowd his advantage. He awaits the call with the certainty with which one awaits the sunrise.

Slips a Cog

MAKING President Harding "back up" is a popular political sport these days. It is hard to keep the stand-patters happy and at the same time conduct a political campaign in a progressive country. Whenever the president gets any political hay down, some cabinet member or department head clouds up and rains on it. The latest case is that in which, defending his movement toward international cooperation for peace, the president quoted statistics to show that 85 per cent of federal taxes go for wars, past, and in prospect. Mr. Weeks, secretary of war, protested. His reason is that when this statement was put out by the National Council for Prevention of War, Mr. Weeks took exception to it. In the dispute which followed, he seemed to have all the worse of the argument. Nevertheless, he stands by his own figures. They represent his story, and he is going to stick to it. And it naturally makes him "cockeyed" to have the president justify his opponents. The war department, of course, is raring to back Mr. Weeks.

It is hastily announced that Mr. Weeks will not resign, although he has cautioned the president against further mistakes of this sort. It would be a good thing for the country were President Harding to make Secretary Weeks perfectly aware that he can resign and be dinged, if he wants to. This peace thing is the world's biggest problem, quite too large to be sacrificed in any sense to the mathematical pride of the secretary of war.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

A business visitor here yesterday was Harry Burrows, Chicago, who is associated with his brother, A. Burrows, in the establishment here of a ladies' coat and suit house that will occupy the mercantile floor of the State Bank building, 407-409 Main street. The style of the firm will be "Burrows", after the line of the "Burrows" stores which the brothers conduct in Chicago. Mr. Burrows goes tonight to Chicago but he will return to make his permanent home here July 28. He will open the store for business August 9.

The car hasn't got her tongue." "Oh, mother!" laughed Ann. "Never mind, dear. We both know that Elizabeth does talk more than she ought to and if I was a girl and engaged to marry Danny Frame, one of the best boys in the world, I wouldn't believe a word of such a tale."

"Even if—what?" demanded Ann. "Not if he brought her to this door and introduced her as such!" Ann's sentiment cleared away the last shred of doubt and it was with a firm intention to have faith in Danny Frame that she watched the village paper for news of his coming home. He had not written for several weeks and Ann was too proud to ask questions.

Captain Danny's Sweetheart

By KATE EDMONDS

"So Captain Danny is coming home, Ann? I am surprised." "Why are you surprised?" Ann Lester wondered what it was that Elizabeth wanted to tell her. She had known Elizabeth all her life and knew her ways.

"You never told me a word about it," reproached Elizabeth, settling down to her knitting, "and I am your best friend."

"Don't be silly, Elizabeth; you can see I don't know what you are talking about."

"I'm talking about Captain Danny's new sweetheart," snapped Miss Lee, pricking viciously with her needles.

Ann slowly withdrew. She counted ten before she spoke.

"What about it?"

"Did you know?" countered Ann.

"Well, since you are so cool, I don't suppose you really care to learn that Captain Danny Frame is coming home."

Ann slowly withdrew. She counted ten before she spoke.

"I guess so. Ben said Danny was crazy about her, called her a peach and did a lot of things."

"Hardly," Elizabeth laughed.

"How do you know?"

"The kids don't know. Eliza, but I don't think Dan would care about that kind of girl."

"Goodness gracious!" Elizabeth started after the proud young form running before the gate that was coming up from the southeast.

Ann Lester loved to be out in the wind. It seemed to blow all the troubles and worries from her brain, and at night his howling made the chimney corner seem cooler and more cozy.

She had sat and written her letters to Danny Frame. And Danny's own letters—how she had cherished them!

She would burn them all this very night.

The thought sent her speeding on. She crossed the high wire and looked over the sound of the wind.

It looked like Capt. Danny's boat, Morning Glory, and with the thought of Danny and this girl he was going to marry so near came a quivering at her heart.

Ann Lester, fearless in the face of physical danger, had before the coming of Capt. Danny's new sweetheart.

"What is all this I hear about Danny Frame?" asked her mother when they sat down to supper.

"You mean about some girl he is bringing home to meet his mother?" asked Ann bluntly.

"Yes, though I don't believe a word of it."

"Elizabeth says it's true."

"Oh, mother!" laughed Ann.

"Never mind, dear. We both know that Elizabeth does talk more than she ought to and if I was a girl and engaged to marry Danny Frame, one of the best boys in the world, I wouldn't believe a word of such a tale."

"Even if—what?" demanded Ann.

"Not if he brought her to this door and introduced her as such!" Ann's sentiment cleared away the last shred of doubt and it was with a firm intention to have faith in Danny Frame that she watched the village paper for news of his coming home.

He had not written for several weeks and Ann was too proud to ask questions.

When one day her mother came hurriedly into the sitting room where Ann was sewing steadily on her tulle, for she and Dan had set the wedding day for June, and this was May.

"Ann—Ann, my dear," said her mother breathlessly, sinking into a chair.

"Yes, mother. What is the matter? Are you sick?"

"Mercy no, child. I just heard startling news."

"What is it?"

"Yes, a lot of folks are all going down to the dock. They say Capt. Danny is coming in the harbor now."

Ann got up and put away her sewing. She was quite pale and her hands shook as she reached for her old felt hat.

"Ann Lester, you're not going?"

"Of course I am going—I shall be one of the first ones to greet her."

"Don't you care, Ann, don't you care about it, darling? He's not worth a pang of sorrow."

"I'm not caring—much, mother," smiled Ann, running out of the house and down the steep lane that led to the dock. Scores of people had gathered to welcome their favorite young townsman back from a successful voyage, and many a curious glance searched out Ann, busy with walking in the fresh wind.

She cannot be such a goose as to expect that Danny will go back to her room."

Ann whispered one girl to another and all the while Ann's smiling lips were praying for strength to carry her through this ordeal—murmuring her faith in Danny.

The vessel grew nearer, the afternoon sun catching her sails and turning them to golden wings.

He's got new sails, mattered one old man. "And new coat of paint."

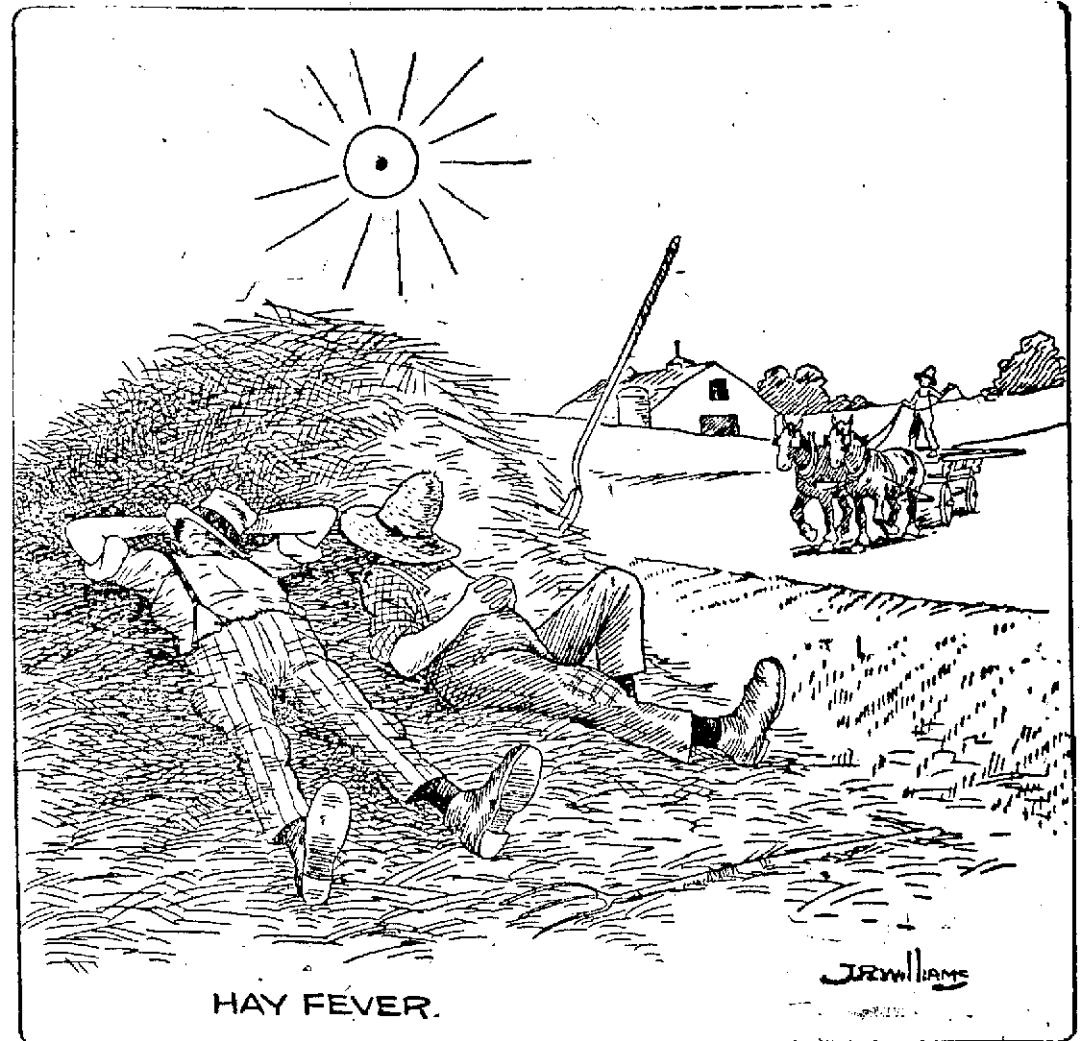

"New boat, by jinks!" Hey-ho—Capt. Danny! Another old man leaped in the air and waved his hat frantically.

The crowd cheered.

Ann was in the foreground. She would meet Danny's sweetheart face to face and smile upon her. The Lester pride was all hers that day.

The sails were white and red, and the boat came gracefully into dock.

like a tired bird come to rest. She was brand new, and her name shone out in clear white letters on her bow: Sweetheart.

The crowd gave the young captain a rousing welcome home, but he had only eyes for one—Ann Lester. His true love, waiting with shining, faithful eyes for his greeting. They went up the hill to Ann's house, while Danny explained his great luck in a part ownership in the new boat.

Ben Frame stayed behind to explain to his friends all about his great job. "It was a sweetheart," he declared stoutly.

RAZING OF BRIDGE AT SPRING PRAIRIE RECALLS HISTORY OF MORMON COLONY IN WISCONSIN

SPRING PRAIRIE, Wis.—The old iron span, known as the Voree bridge, which crossed the White river on Highway 26, between Burlington and this place has been razed, and in its place a concrete structure now spans the river. The passing of the quaint old bridge has brought to the minds of the old settlers, stories of the Mormon founder of the village of Voree, now Spring Prairie.

The founder, known to his followers as King James, Strang the prophet, planted a stake of Zion in the eastern part of Walworth county and named it Voree, "Garden of Peace."

Strang settled with his wife in Burlington, Wisconsin, and came in contact with Mormons who were sent to get lumber for their temple at Nauvoo, Illinois. He was converted to their doctrine, and went to Nauvoo for baptism. He was made an elder immediately and commissioned to start a colony in Wisconsin. The town of Voree was the result.

The Mormon leader, called King by most of his clan, set aside five acres of land upon which he planned to build a big temple with twelve towers piercing the sky, one tower in honor of each of his dozen wives.

Wanted to Take Smith's Place
Shortly after the new colony began, Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, died and then Strang became ambitious and was desirous of becoming the exalted ruler of all Mormons. He hastened to the Mormon headquarters at Nauvoo with a letter purported to have been written by the founder and ordaining Strang as his successor.

Strang was rejected by the main body of Mormons who followed his rival, Brigham Young, on to Utah. Nevertheless his eloquence won him several hundred followers whom he led back to Voree.

The new colony flourished. Houses, mills and roads were built; and in were compelled to wear bloomers and to work like men. Prohibition was strictly enforced and coffee and tea were prohibited. Polygamy was practiced extensively. Strang was known at one time to have had twelve wives.

Meets Tragic End
Tragedy ended the career of the founder of Voree. One day in July, 1856, two of his enemies shot him down from the rear, but Strang lived long enough to give careful directions concerning his successor, which were superfluous, as a mob from the mainland invaded the island upon hearing of his serious condition. His followers were scattered, most of them being landed at Milwaukee; and he asked to be taken to Voree.

He lived but a few hours after the trip and was buried at Voree. Nothing but a grass-grown grave marks the resting place of the Mormon monarch.

Mistress or Maid?

Can You Tell Which By Their Hands?

A Special Soap for Women Who Do Household Work to Keep Hands Soft and Lovely

Do you know there is now no reason for a woman who does kitchen work—even laundry work!—having ugly hands?

Soft and lovely hands—you, too, can have them.

Why hands get ugly

3 housewives in 4 have ugly hands—hands which tell kitchen secrets.

Harsh laundry soaps are the reason.

Most contain 25% to 40% water glass—a skin wrecker. Of 28 popular brands of household soaps recently analyzed, 27 were adulterated.

Put your hands in strong suds day after day. And there can be but one answer.

Now a gentle way

Green Arrow is a new idea in household soap.

It is made for women who appreciate the charm of pretty hands.

It cannot injure. For it is like a fine toilet soap. Olive oil is one of its principal ingredients. It cleans more quickly and safely than the strongest old-time soap.

Wash dishes, scrub—yet have pretty hands.

That is what Green Arrow offers you.

For one week

Obtain a bar at your grocer's.

Then look at your hands in one week.

You will thank us, as thousands of women have, for telling you about it.

And it costs but a little each month to enjoy it, for it goes almost twice as far as ordinary soap—you must figure soap costs by the month, not by the bar.

Green Arrow Soap comes in two forms—cake soap for general household use—chips (or flakes) for laundry and fine fabrics. Both offer you unusual advantages.

Your Hands Tell the Story

Rough, ugly hands tell a story to the world. A story of the kitchen, the laundry, the scrub bucket.

Most women do household work. But few want to tell it to every chance acquaintance.

Most laundry soaps contain 25% to 40% water glass. This adulterant, technically known as silicate of soda, is invariably accompanied by an excess of caustic. It is this "filler"—not soap—that ruins hands. Green Arrow is made with the precision of a toilet soap and is pure soap.

Now you can have white and lovely hands regardless of how much kitchen work you do.

For your hands and your clothes' sakes, go to your grocer and insist on buying GREEN ARROW.

GIRLS' SUMMER CAMPS

BY JANE DEETER RIPPIN
National Director, Girl Scouts

Laying Out Your Camp

Girls are not camping this year? Summer is here, and the camp season is on. Here are some tips that will add to your fun and your comfort if you go.

Choosing your camp site is important. See that you have some shade and some sunny land, part flat and part hilly. Six girls may be accommodated in one tent, or you may pitch one large tent for four and a smaller one for two; or make both larger, if there are more campers, or add another tent if necessary.

The accompanying sketch shows a tent layout for four girls, with a covered porch 14x18, and another tent 12x12. In the center is the camp fire, under the trees, an outdoor dining-table; nearby, a fly covering the stove; in the rear, behind the trees on one side is a cache for food, and on the other side a drain for waste water, and a wash house.

Watch Drinking Water
See that the water supply is pure. Have it tested by local health authorities. When in doubt, boil the water. After it has been boiled it will taste flat, because the oxygen

HOW TO MAKE GIRLS' CAMPS BY SCOUT HEAD

Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippin, national director of the Girl Scouts, is writing a series of articles on Girls' Summer Camps for the La Crosse Tribune. Her first story dealing with the selection of the camp site, appears in this issue.

Mrs. Rippin, who has had more dealings with individual girls than any other woman in the country, has written six articles which will solve every girl's camping problem. These hints tell how to build a camp correctly, how to make wood furniture, the sort of supplies and what quantities one ought to take along and a thousand and one things every camper should know.

While written primarily for girl campers, Mrs. Rippin's articles are equally interesting to all other prospective campers.

Girls Plan Careers, But Win Success Before They Begin

Miss Evaline Sellers, above, and two of the Tut's pups she created; below, Miss Mabel Claire and her Mother Goose candles.

NEW YORK—Did you ever plan to accomplish something big — and have it done before you've started on your plans?

Such a pleasant circumstance is recorded in the lives of two budding female artists who had planned taking up art here and in Paris—only to find themselves steeped in success.

And to both it is an artistic, as well as financial, success.

Mabel Claire, who has her studio here and had already started her art course, is now so busy making a fortune in sculptured "Mother Goose" candles, that she finds little time to continue her studies. In fact, she's indefinitely postponed her trip to Paris and Rome, where she was to round out her artistic education.

Had to Pay Rent
A few years ago Miss Claire hadn't the remotest idea of going into business. But when she found herself in a New York studio with rent to be paid and a few orders for statues or fountains coming in, she had to get busy.

For a studio party, one day, she made some fancy candles—funny little figures fitted into colored holders. They were so popular with the guests that she was advised to make a business of them.

"I did," Miss Claire explained. "And the day after I had put them into the hands of a wholesale dealer, I received my first orders, and I've been so busy ever since filling them and those that followed that Paris and Rome have passed right out of the picture. I've become a business woman."

And when the public gets tired of the candle dolls she's confident she'll find something else just as popular.

"Tut's Pup"

Not so Miss Evaline Sellers of Fort Worth, Tex. Even though success has arrived before she started on her artistic career, Miss Sellers insists she's coming to New York to study art. She won't give up her plans for all the success in the world. In fact, that's just what she wanted to carry them through.

Miss Sellers now is art student at Washington University, St. Louis. In her third year there she made plans for her New York course. But she had to have money for that. So she thought of a way—Tut's Pup!

"The idea of Tut's Pup" came to me after I saw some of the girls carrying Daddy Dolls and other forms of stuffed pets. Why not a dog? I thought. So I created a pup. And that's all there is to it."

But that isn't all. Miss Sellers is getting orders from all corners of the country for her pups. She can't keep up with the demand.

Yet Miss Sellers insists she still wants to take up art in New York.

Sister Mary's KITCHEN

SALADS AND DRESSINGS

The first requisite for a successful salad is crispness and coolness of all ingredients of course, but to my mind the condition of the lettuce tells the story.

As soon as lettuce comes from either market or garden, put it into a large pan of clear cold water and let stand at least an hour. Shake the water from the leaves and toss into a cloth big enough to hold the lettuce loosely. If needed immediately gather the corners of the cloth firmly in one hand and wring as vigorously as possible. If not needed for an hour pin the bundle of lettuce loosely on a line stretched in a shady, breezy spot. This makes delicious crisp lettuce that does not ruin the crisp lettuce. If one is fortunate enough to own one of the wire baskets now on the market for this purpose so much the better.

If lettuce is allowed to stand on ice after washing for two or three hours to chill, it is just that much better in the salad.

These dressings are particularly good over head or leaf lettuce:

French Dressing
One half teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-8 teaspoon mustard, 4 tablespoons olive or a good vegetable oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar.

Mix dry ingredients and stir in vinegar. Add oil slowly, beating constantly. All ingredients and utensils used in mixing the dressing should be thoroughly chilled. Serve immediately after mixing.

Russian Dressing
1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon black pepper, 1-8 teaspoon mustard.

TWO LA CROSSE GIRLS TO RIDE IN HORSE SHOW

Edith Jorris and Mary Wing Chosen as Expert Riders

Two La Crosse girls Miss Edith Jorris and Miss Mary Wing have been chosen to ride in the annual horse show held at Camp Ahiti, Lake Sylvia, South Haven, Minnesota, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Jorris and Miss Wing are spending the summer at Camp Ahiti. Miss Jorris is one of the assistant counselors of the camp, assisting in swimming, horseback riding, camp inspection and in entertaining camp guests.

For the horse show on Saturday twenty-five of the more skilled riders at Camp Ahiti will be entered in five classes of the show, while a sixth, the blue ribbon class, will be chosen at the horse show and the best riders selected from it. The riders will be judged for their form in riding and their ability to manage the horses while putting them through their paces.

Mr. Frank Prichard of Minneapolis will exhibit "Wild Rose," "Burban Lady," "Dress Parade," "St. Cloud" and "Going Up," besides the horses already at camp. Miss Barbara Schriver of Minneapolis will exhibit "Lassie," a horse ridden by the Prince of Wales while in Winnipeg.

Hurdling and jumping will be features of the show. Horseback games will follow the classes and among the games will be musical chair, egg race, and South American race. The horses shown will be judged by Mr. L. P. Berry of Minneapolis.

Among the girls selected to ride are Edith Jorris and Mary Wing, La Crosse, Elizabeth Botsford and Eleanor Laird of Winona.

The Egyptian Pageant to be presented Saturday evening has been written and directed by Miss Evelyn Currier, St. Louis, the camp dramatic director. The plot of the production centers about an oriental celebration in tribute to the birthday of Queen Cleopatra. Miss Edith Jorris is to take the part of Mark Antony, Miss Mary Wing is to be a lady of the court.

No More Gray Hair—Says Science

Wonderful Clean, Colorless Liquid Restores Original Color Results in a Week

Science again has scored a triumph in the discovery of a very remarkable liquid known as Kolor-Bak. If you are gray, just apply this liquid to the hair and scalp and your hair will soon take on the actual color it had in the past. Not a trace of grayness will remain.

Kolor-Bak comes in the form of a clean and colorless liquid, containing properties which quickly restore the lost color to the hair and give it renewed vigor. And note that the one preparation is for all colors of hair. No special solution required for each color—no samples of hair required.

You will find also that with Kolor-Bak the hair has the same shade throughout. It does not appear streaked, faded or "dyed." Every scientist, every physician, knows that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells (called follicles or papillae) in the scalp, because these cells have become inactive from illness, shock of some kind, scalp disease, dandruff, infection, neglect of the hair, or lack of circulation, etc. But no matter what the cause of the grayness, it is simply amazing to see how it disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is a real substitute for the natural pigmentation.

NEW PARTY IDEA GETS NO SUPPORT FROM STATE LABOR

Proposal for Organization of Farm-labor Group Rejected at Convention

SESSION ADOPTS RESOLUTION DEMANDING RETURN OF BEER

"One Big Union" Plan Receives Setback at Meeting

SUPERIOR, Wis.—By The Associated Press.—The proposed organization of an independent farmer-labor party in Wisconsin at the present time failed to get favorable reaction from the State Federation of Labor at its convention here Thursday afternoon with the result that all resolutions favoring separate political action were defeated.

Instead, the delegates sided with the federation of executive board in recommending that "labor maintain its heretofore declared position and that Wisconsin unions be urged to continue their conferences with farmer groups until such time as it may be desirable to work through an individual membership party for independent political action."

Under its present organization, the federation supports both the La Follette movement among the republicans and the socialists in Milwaukee.

Demand Return of Beer

Strict prohibition was attacked by the convention with adoption of a resolution directing the executive board to use its efforts to bring about the return of light wines and beer. "We do not believe that the prohibition question will ever be solved until the people shall be permitted the use of wholesome beer and wine," the resolution read.

The "one big union" idea also received a setback in the convention. A resolution proposing general amalgamation of trade unions into industrial unions was killed and the executive board report adopted asking reconsideration of the craft organizations.

A sharp floor battle resulted from consideration of a resolution to change the directing organization of the federation in order to take control from Milwaukee.

A redistricting plan proposing selection of members of the executive board from seven districts in the state, proposed by Superior unions was defeated 57 to 65.

Crownhart Defends Court

Justice Charles Crownhart of the Wisconsin supreme court addressed the delegates Thursday afternoon, defending the honesty of the justices on the state's high court. He told the delegates that although members of the court might reflect a different viewpoint from that of labor, they were men of ability and integrity and honest in their views.

Elections, action on resolutions and choice of a meeting place for next year are on the program for Friday.

MICA NECESSARY IN ELECTRICAL WORK

Statements issued by the department of the interior list mica as supplying a need in this electrical age not filled by any other substance. Its conductivity of electricity and heat, and its toughness, flexibility and elasticity make it invaluable in the electrical manufacturing industry. Before it was so employed it was probably used chiefly in glazing, for which large sheets of mica, with perfect cleavage were required. Much mica that was then regarded as waste is now used in electrical and other industries by making it into "mica-board," or built-up mica. Imperfect sheets of mica are also ground and used in the manufacture of lubricants, in fancy paints, rubber goods, molded mica and roofing papers for covering steam pipes and in many other ways.

BEST PAPER MILL IN THE WORLD IN WASHINGTON

The paper mill at the bureau of standards is one of the show places of Washington, D. C. Uncle Sam makes no secret of any of his equipment for the making of paper, and anyone who is interested is welcome to visit and inspect the plant and to use the formulas on file.

The experts at the bureau of standards are constantly working out methods to improve the quality of paper manufactured and to find new raw materials from which to make paper. Improvements in machinery are tried out at this plant, and changes in equipment are being continuously made to perfect the methods in use. The miniature paper mill probably is the best of its kind in the world. It is sufficiently large to demonstrate all features of paper making, and the equipment is capable of making paper of every grade known to the trade.

RAILROAD FUNDS MADE AVAILABLE TO AID FARMERS

Denver & Rio Grande Deposits Over Million in Banks Along the System

DENVER, Col.—An announcement was made here Thursday night that the Denver & Rio Grande Western railway has deposited $1,400,000 in various banks in towns along its system and that this money is immediately available to farmers, ranchmen and others who are patrons of the respective banks. The money is not a loan to the banks, it was explained by Cass L. Herrington, attorney for the receivers of the railroad but has been deposited and government funds taken as security.

The entire amount is on "demand" deposit and will not be needed by the railroad until January, 1924. It was obtained by sale of receiver's certificates, which is part of the rehabilitation program announced some time ago.

Another million dollars of short time money has been deposited in Denver banks. This, however, is subject to use whenever the road requires it for improvements already decided upon.

Ill-fated revolutionary leader and old yeoman service with his band in the fighting about Juarez. He accompanied Madero to Mexico City but later returned to Chihuahua. When Madero sent General Victoriano Huerta, then his commander-in-chief, into the North to break the Orozco rebellion, Huerta and Villa clashed. Each was intolerant of the other and Huerta finally had Villa arrested, sent to Mexico City and condemned to death by a military court for insubordination. Madero, mindful of his past services, had his sentence commuted to imprisonment in the penitentiary at Mexico City. While confined there Villa taught himself to read and write. He then escaped and sought refuge across the Texas border.

When Huerta declared himself dictator after Madero's death in 1913, and Carranza raised the banner of revolt in Coahuila, Villa again crossed the border to take a hand against his old-time enemy. His former friends, the peons, flocked to his standard and he dealt blow after blow at the disorganized federal forces.

Controlled Half of Mexico

This campaign cleared the federalists out of the north of Mexico with the exception of Zacatecas city, and gave Villa virtually control of more than half of Mexico. He returned to Torreon and Chihuahua to rest and recruit in June, 1914, and at this time came the first open break between him and Carranza.

Although Villa had been one of the independent chiefs who met and formulated the plan of Guadalupe which made Carranza first chief of the Constitutional forces, the two men always had been inimical.

The affair rankled, however, and in July of the same year the trouble again broke out. An immediate clash between the Carranza forces under General Pablo Gonzalez and Villa seemed imminent but a commission of prominent men on both sides met at Torreon and aided by representatives of the United States State Department patched up a truce.

Villa in conjunction with Zapata dominated the convention called at Aguas Calientes to determine on a provisional president and the procedure of the temporary government. Eulalio Gutierrez was named provisional president but Carranza refused to recognize the action of the convention.

Carranza retired to Vera Cruz and Villa and Zapata forces occupied Mexico City only to drive it as propped up by low. Zapata retired to his stronghold in Morelos and Villa turned back to the north. Gutierrez was cast aside for another figurehead and Villa marshaled his forces to meet the Carranza troops under General Alvaro Obregon.

Villa up to that time had never lost a battle in which he was in personal command, but Obregon, a less spectacular figure but whose successes in the West had equaled Villa's in the North, was more than his match. At Celaya, Irapuato and Silao he defeated the former bandit.

In those battles, Obregon lost an arm and Villa lost his grip on his men. He retreated northward to his old headquarters at Torreon but dared not risk a battle even in that stronghold. Disaster followed another when he retreated across the mountains to harry Sonora in company with the Yaqui chieftain Urbalejo.

Deserted by Followers

Gathering his forces, he marched north in an effort to seize Agua Prieta, a border port through which he hoped to get arms and supplies. Villa made his attack but was beaten off by General Calles and the Agua Prieta garrison. Again he turned south only to meet General Guemez advancing from Hermosillo. Caught between two fires he turned back to his own country, Chihuahua. There the defections from his ranks continued. General Angeles and Gov. Maytorena already had left his standard and nearly all the generals and men of his command followed suit, accepting amnesty of Carranza and surrendering their arms.

Villa sent his wife across the border and with but a few hundred men sought the mountains, again a bandit with a price upon his head. Looting ranches for horses and provisions, he gathered about him scattered members of his former army.

Hunted closely by the Carranza troops under General Herrera, it was rumored that he was approaching the border in the hope of escaping to the United States and justifying his course with the authorities at Washington.

Then came the most wildly daring act of his reckless career. The attack March 9, 1916 on the American town of Columbus, N. M., and its garrison of three troops of American Cavalry, resulting in the dispatch of United States soldiers into Mexico.

Idol to His Men

Whatever his crimes, and they were many, none could doubt Villa's courage. He loved fighting for its own sake and seemed happiest when under fire. For a time he was almost an idol to his men and ruled them by an odd mixture of love and fear. Most of the songs sung about Mexican fires had him for their hero and his soldiers were proud to brag that they were of Villa's "gente," his fabled subjects. None who saw him lead his men into battle could doubt he was a leader of men.

By some he was accounted a military genius, in the days of his successes but by many credit for his strategy and tactics displayed in his campaigns is given to General Felipe Angeles, a soldier trained at Chapultepec and St. Cyr. However, none questioned his ability to carry out the plans, whoever originated them.

The one vice he could not tolerate was drunkenness. His camps were models of sobriety although at times it required a row of dead bodies lying before a wall to make them so. It is related by some of his men that they have seen Col. Fierro, his body guard and one of those closest to him, beat on his knees for his life when he had neglected some order because of insobriety.

Nothing so delighted him as to "throw a scare" into his men. He would call them up for some dereliction of duty, tongue lash them until they expected nothing less than instant execution, whack them across the back with the flat of his sword and then grin, throw them a handful of pesos, and warn them not to do so again.

APPROVE PLAN TO CUT DOWN WHEAT ACREAGE IN WEST

CHICAGO, Ill.—The co-operative agreement to curtail wheat production by the wheat growers of the six states in the wheat producers' conference of the southwest, will clear the way for prosperity of wheat growers in 1924, it was declared by Grosvenor Dawe, executive vice president of the Wheat Council of the United States, in a report to the council made public here Friday.

"With an agreement like this the wheat growers of the United States can go a long way to ward getting on a sound basis before the snow flies," Mr. Dawe said. He endorsed the policies of the wheat producers' conference of the southwest, organized in Wichita, Kas., July 16, by representatives from Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado, Texas, and Missouri, and declared that the wheat council of the United States would co-operate in the efforts of the southwestern men.

REASONS FOR STARS TWINKLING

There are several reasons why stars twinkle. One is that these bodies are so immensely distant that not even the most powerful telescope can show them to have a visible disc, like the planets. Their light, consequently, is a mere point, so minute as to be susceptible of interference by the various and unequal densities of the atmosphere. Hence, atmospheric changes have a marked effect upon the twinkling. For example, it is found that as the temperature falls and as the barometer rises. An experience of nearly forty years showed M. Montigny that with the quantity of moisture in the air the twinkling of the stars increased so markedly as to serve for a useful prognostic of rain. Cyclonic conditions generally are found to promote it, whilst it is extremely sensitive to magnetic disturbances. Humboldt on one occasion in the tropics found that the stars shone with a mild and planetary light; their scintillation was scarcely sensible at the horizon. This, it is apparent, was due to the great homogeneity of the atmosphere; whereby the extremely fine pencil of light from the stars was not interfered with by unequally dense strata.

BASSO STIRRED UP THE LION HOUSE

The late Myron Whitney, famed in both oratorio and opera, not only had wonderful low notes but could roar like a lion when he wanted to.

Once upon visiting Philadelphia, he expressed the desire to visit the city's Zoological Gardens. His friends formed a party and upon going into the Carnivora building, took it into his head to hold a little conversation with the lions. So he imitated them to the best of his ability and the lions set up a deafening roar which was at once taken up by all the other animals in the building and the famous singer and his friends were so alarmed that they fled precipitately from the building. In the haste and confusion of their departure Whitney fell down. He was assisted to his feet by one of his friends who tenderly inquired, "Did you break anything?" Whitney felt himself all over and then replied, "No, nothing but a pocket full of cigars."

LONG INTERMISSION

While Mark Twain wrote a great deal, he could write only when the spirit moved him. After he had gotten well along in the manuscript of Tom Sawyer he seemed unable to finish it to his satisfaction and laid it aside. It was two years after that he took it up again and completed the story. "The reason of this halt," he wrote, "was very simple—my tank had run dry." After a couple of years he took it up again. "It was then that I made the great discovery that when the tank runs dry you've only to leave it alone and it will fill up again, in time, while you are asleep. There was plenty of material now, and the book went on and finished itself without any trouble."

ROTARY CLUB AT BOY SCOUT CAMP ENJOYS OUTING

Members of the Organization Which Bought Camp Site Visits Big Resort

YOUNG BOYS ALSO GUESTS AT CAMP DURING THE DAY

Camp Fire, Eats and Everything on the program

The Rotary Club of La Crosse did itself proud Thursday afternoon, when a total of eighty-five Rotarians, wives and children reported at Camp Young Bear for the annual Camp Young Bear picnic. Besides the Rotarians were several specially invited guests, most noteworthy of them being members of the carpenters' union and their families, who helped in the construction of the big dining hall, members of the stone masons' union who built the fireplace, and the painters union, who will complete the painting of the dining hall and kitchen on Saturday of this week.

All guests were furnished with boxes of dainty lunch, put up by the Bodaca Club, fruit furnished by John C. Burns, and ice cream and cones, coffee and cream.

The guests made a survey of the camp, and noted the remarkable improvement over last year, the floating piers, the diving boards, diving towers, and the new well which furnishes water for the kitchen.

Boys Are Guests

The other guests at camp for the day were 116 boys from eight to twelve years of age, who left the playgrounds of the city at 6 o'clock Thursday morning, in trucks furnished by the Standard Oil Company, Callaway Music Co., the War Wash, Laundry and the Leithold Music Store. These boys, carried with them two meals, "Old Methusalem," the veteran pine tree of the place, which is situated on the edge of the bluff going into "Sleepy Hollow," the extreme east end of the camp. These young guests had two swimming periods and hikes to the Indian Camp. These jaunts were taken in 4 groups, each group being in charge of a scout official and a scout for each two boys. Each group was named after one of the pets of camp, the most popular being "Dynamite," the burro, who is gentle to the small but enjoys throwing off the larger ones as much as the boys like to be unseated. The others were the Crow, Badger and Racoon. Each section, when called together was called by the call of the Animal or bird after which it was named. At 6 o'clock the youngsters were fed their fill of ice cream and cones furnished by the Tri-State Ice Cream Company.

Camp Fire Enjoyed

At 6:30 assembly was blown, and all scouts and guests hike, to Little Bear Camp where the Council Ring is situated for one of the most inspirational council fires of the year. On the inner circle were seated the honor guests of the evening, the young visitors, who with open eyes watched Dan Young Bear dance the Indian dances and listened to him speak his native tongue. On the chief seat sat John C. Burns, scout commissioner and B. C. Smith, chairman of the camp committee. These two men gave short talks, after which other guests were introduced. One feature was the presentation of all the union men who worked on the big scout dining hall, and their wives who had furnished lunches for the men before camp opened. This group was given a rousing cheer by the scouts and Rotarians, and quoting John Hermann, president of the carpenters union, "Scouting has the community's interest and every member of the community can cooperate regardless of outside differences."

Outstanding Good Turn

Several visitors were requested to come into the council ring and speak, among them P. J. Yerly, who had helped the Scout executive in transporting the laboring men to camp on occasions after working hours. Saturday afternoons and Sundays, Mr. Yerly at ten minutes notice would leave his work and take out men who had been left by others who had promised days before to make the trip.

T. H. Brindley, president of the Rotary Club, made a short talk in closing, emphasizing that the purchase of the Camp Young Bear Site was a big outstanding good turn, accomplished by the Rotary spirit.

After Dan Young Bear had danced his dances, and before the Snake Dance, two scouts were introduced, one who won the honor of Scoutmaster at Culver Military Academy, Woodmont, Summer School, in 1922, Forrest Herbert, and First Class Scout William Witt, the first and only first class scout of a German Lutheran Church troop in the United States today.

The last introduction of all, was the introduction by Scout Executive A. B. Burgess, of his mother, who with his sister, had come 400 miles to visit his camp.

Closing Ceremonial

The regular camp closing ceremonial was gone through and the young guests reported to the trucks and were taken back to town, tired but happy.

It is hoped next year, at the annual Rotary Camp Young Bear picnic, that the weather will be as favorable as yesterday, and that every Rotarian will plan to visit this wonderful wilderness which makes an ideal camp site.

Japan, which rapidly embraces things Occidental, has taken up the automobile hearse, which originated in the United States. The wealthy classes have discarded the ancient type funerals with hand-drawn carriages and use the motor cars instead.

Device Used at Hospital so Mothers May Leave Babies Without Revealing Identity

RIO DE JANEIRO.—One of the most curious institutions in this city is the "Casa dos Expositos," a founding asylum that receives its small inmates through a sort of revolving door which is so built in a wall that the person operating it from the outside cannot see inside the building nor be seen by persons within.

The purpose of this mysterious door is to enable unfortunate mothers to place their offspring in safe keeping without revealing their identity or whatever secrets may have been connected with their existence.

Most of the foundlings, the asylum officials say, are put within the revolving door at night when there is little or no traffic on the street outside. With the turning of the door a bell rings, which announces to the attendants that a new guest has arrived.

If a note giving the child's name or other information is pinned to its clothes, it is baptised with that name, but once a baby is placed within the door by the despairing mother, it is never returned, no matter what change in fortune may come to the mother or what claims she may advance to support her repentance.

The inmates of the "Casa dos Expositos" are raised like orphans and prepared for life with the best care within the ability of the gentle nuns who manage the institution. Many of the children are adopted by childless couples. Founded in 1738, the institution in the two centuries of its existence has furnished more than 45,000 citizens to this city, some of whom achieved renown and high position, and their introduction to the world was a revolving door.

Holes in salt shaker tops will keep open on damp days if you fill with pepper and no salt.

INDIANS ARE WEALTHIEST RACE

The accusation that the United States has robbed the Indian of his home and land, and has made no adequate return for it, is not substantiated by the facts, for the assertion is made that tribally and individually the Indians of this country are the richest of all races. They own 7,000,000 acres of valuable lumber lands located in fifteen states which contain wood said to be valued at $100,000,000. The Indian forests in extent are equal to the combined area of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Arizona, New Mexico, Wisconsin, Idaho, California and Minnesota. This together with other property owned by the Indians brings their per capita wealth up to $2,400. In the past ten years the returns for timber lands to the Indians averaged $1,500,000 and the amount is increasing constantly.

WOMEN LEARN OF POLITICAL PARTIES AND THEIR USES

Professor Thompson Talks of Parties and Ford MacGregor
Discusses Elections

MONROE DOCTRINE AN OBSOLETE POLICY DECLARES STUART

Says U. S. Cannot Maintain
Attitude of Isolation

MADISON, Wis.—Political rancors of the nation are resulting in five distinct groups in the organization of political parties in the opinion of Walter Thompson, of the department of Political Science, speaking before the Wisconsin League of Women Voters Conference here Friday morning. He characterized these organizations as conservatives, progressives, liberals, reactionaries and radicals.

A political party is a voluntary organization of individuals having more or less common political ideas and sentiments and seeking to gain control of the government by peaceful means," declared Prof. Thompson. He said that political parties were necessary in a democracy and that there was a need of recognizing the party that with popular control. He pointed out the lack of inherent differences in the nature of political parties in the United States and that there were differences in parties that were based on race or nationality, religion, sex or occupational differences.

Prof. Thompson discussed the functions of political parties in the formation of party policies, the nomination of candidates, the conducting of campaigns and assuming responsibility for the management of the government.

Elections Discussed
Ford MacGregor, chief of the bureau of municipal information of the university extension department, explained in detail the election and voting methods. He pointed out that there were three classes of elections: general elections, spring elections and special elections. He pointed out that the September primaries and the general elections were on a partisan basis and that the spring elections, municipal elections and school elections were on a non-partisan basis. The use of the secret ballot was stressed by Prof. MacGregor in his talk. He told how the larger cities used electoral devices and machines and explained the laws governing the swearing in of voters. Among the electoral reforms suggested were methods of obtaining majority elections instead of plurality elections. The proportional election system that has been used in some of the school elections in eastern cities and which has been suggested for the Milwaukee school board elections, was discussed.

Miss Emily Kuenbuhl, one of the national workers of the league of women voters, spoke on present day practices in elections. Before entering the citizenship work of the league, Miss Kuenbuhl was a community service worker during the world war and previous to that time had been in the teaching profession. She said that much of her information on politics and political parties had been gained from her own experiences.

Declaring that the United States could not follow a policy of isolation, Professor D. H. Stuart of the Political Science department of the University Friday afternoon, declared that the Monroe Doctrine is obsolete. He pointed out that this was the 100th anniversary of the announcement of the doctrine.

"If any European state should attempt to interfere with any established government in South America at this time, it would hardly be necessary for the United States to interfere—the South American countries are able to take care of themselves," declared Prof. Stuart.

"Washington's policy, to shun entangling alliances with the European state does not fit present day conditions," declared Prof. Stuart.

"Washington would surely have been the last person to have desired his message to bind the United States one hundred and twenty-five years later, when all the conditions upon which his advice was based have completely disappeared. If isolation was a reasonable policy in Washington's day, the veriest tyro in politics appreciates that it is neither advisable nor possible today."

DEVOTEES OF ST. ANNE
FLOCKING TO NOVENA
SUPERIOR, Wis.—People came from all over Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and the Dakotas to attend the annual novena to St. Anne of the Lakes which opened here on Tuesday, July 17, and will continue until July 26. Requests for information concerning the novena have been pouring in for months from all sections of the northwest, according to the Rev. Bernard Le Febvre, who is arranging the novena.

CLUB OPPOSES GAME LAWS
BIRCHWOOD, Wis.—The Haywood Rod and Gun club has gone on record on opposing the changes in the Wisconsin fish laws which have removed the size limitation on all game fish. The club has posted resolutions which call upon all fishermen, guides and sportsmen to return to the waters all fish which are considered under the former lawful size. The 1925 legislature has made changes in the Wisconsin fish laws that will soon deplete the waters of game fish, according to sportsmen in this part of the state.

AUTO SMASHES STORE FRONT
PIPESTONE, Minn.—A plate glass store front was wrecked when a big touring car driven by John Keenan of Waukegan, N. D., crashed into it. Keenan drove up to the curb in front of the Tot Variety store and as he turned the curb stepped on the gas instead of on the brake. The car leaped over the curb and into the front of the store. No one was injured.

ENGINEERS SEEK A NEW ALPHABET FOR USE IN RADIO

Establishment of Universal Telegraphic Language is Advocated

NEW YORK.—The establishment of a universal telegraphic alphabet is urged in a statement issued today by the Engineering Foundation. Radio engineering is leading the peoples of the earth toward a common language, the foundation asserts.

Methods to simplify and expedite the electrical transmission of messages should be evolved through national legislation and international conferences. Science and commerce will not hesitate to statecraft ready to perform its function? the foundation asks.

"There are ship lanes in the northern Atlantic," the statement continues. "Crowding automobiles in city streets have necessitated traffic lanes. Aviation is establishing lanes in the air. Allotting of lanes in the ether has become urgent."

General Squier in 1913 commenced investigations for improving transmission of the telegraph alphabet, according to the foundation. As the old Morse system failed to meet the needs of present day transmission. In the Morse code the current is interrupted between signals; with the redesigned system the current flows uninterruptedly.

"The new continuous wave system designed by General Squier," the foundation states, "can be applied to radio telegraphy. Variations for dots, dashes and spaces are reduced to the minimum on the theory that the least practicable change of the fundamental wave should be made. For easier reading the waves have been made square-topped."

"The modulating frequencies employed in the new method being of low order, it should be simple to devise instrumentalities to differentiate between them and the higher frequencies of 'static' or other natural disturbances. This new plan proposes to enter the unused infra-audio range, not only adding a useful band of frequencies, but one below the range of the human ear. If employed for telegraphy this band could not interfere with radio telephony receiving."

"National legislation and international conferences are now in order," the foundation declares in conclusion. "To put into use these methods of relief to establish this simple universal alphabet. Radio engineering is leading the peoples of the earth toward a common language, a mutual understanding."

I. W. W. INVASION CALLED OFF AND STRIKE ORDERED

General Marine Walk-out, Covering the Entire Country, is Planned

STRIKE TO BE PROTEST AGAINST IMPRISONMENT OF MEMBERS

Invading I. W. W. to be Diverted to Strategic Points

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. — By The A. P.—The climax of an impending general marine strike, embracing the entire country, being ordered to take marine workers of the Industrial Workers of the World out of vessels in every port comes coincident with calling off of the I. W. W. "invasion" of Port Arthur.

Dramatic eleven-hour summons from high officials today had checked the army of more than 20,000 crusaders bound for this city, itself having little more than 20,000 population. But a few members of the advance guard had arrived. These were in jail.

At eleven o'clock last night the general organizer, Sidney Terry, here announced to an Associated Press representative the calling off of the crusade and simultaneously made the first public announcement of the imminent marine strike.

Strike Called as Protest

The marine strike is to be a protest, Terry said, against imprisonment for violation of criminal syndicalism laws and against the recent court injunction in California. Reports received here from Los Angeles Wednesday told of twenty-seven members of the I. W. W. being convicted of criminal syndicalism by a jury in superior court in Los Angeles and of their sentences to serve from one to fourteen years in San Quentin penitentiary.

The strike is to be a general one, affecting all transport members of our organization as they come into different ports after the strike order is given," he said.

New Orleans, he said, was to have been the centralization point for the Port Arthur "invasion" and he declared that already a considerable number had arrived here by vessel from both Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Besides the flank of the army ordered retained at New Orleans, another flank, Terry declared, had been ordered to the New York sector, while still other contingents from the west will be diverted from their journey here to strategic points to await the "zero hour."

Then simultaneously the strike will go into effect over east, west and Gulf coast. The word may come in a short time, he said.

First Strike Ineffective

Going into effect at midnight April 25, the former I. W. W. marine strike had but little effect on the Gulf. The strike was called off in May after a slight increase in seamen's wages allowed by the shipping board. Terry is here with William Green and Robert Bell, whom he said, are like himself officials of the organization division. He said they would all remain here to stand trial when their vagrancy cases were called and then remain here for further orders.

Alleged mistreatment of John Holland, also an organizer, which was the beginning of the agitation among the marine transport workers' branch of the organization, comes up before the Grand Jury August 6.

As reports from different points in the country from New York to San Francisco told of the oncoming crusaders before the eleventh hour climax last night, tender of support was received from the Ku Klux Klan, the American Legion and word from Austin, the state capital, that Texas rangers were ready in this vicinity.

LOST TOMBS OF JAPANESE

ROYAL LINE ARE UNEARTHED
KYOTO, Japan — Tombs of six Imperial ancestors have just been discovered in obscure spots in suburbs of Kyoto. They have been identified as those of the sons and daughters of Emperor Go-Gojo, who was banished to Oki island by Ashikaga, the usurper, 584 years ago.

The Emperor Go-Gojo dispatched his sons to nearby provinces to raise recruits for his campaign against Ashikaga and their tombs are scattered around the country. The Imperial mausoleum board is making a search for ancient graves, with the hope that discoveries will be made which will help in the study of the history of the country.

KILLS HIMSELF AND CREMATES HIS OWN BODY

QUINCY, Ill.—Milton Enlow, a 63-year-old farmer living near Liberty, south of here, committed suicide and cremated his own body early Thursday by jumping into a huge brush pile near his home, setting fire to the pile and then blowing his brains out with a shotgun. Neighbors say Enlow had carefully collected the brush pile for a year.

Enlow had been despondent for months and had frequently referred to his shotgun as a "faithful pal" which would some day do its duty.

After a restless night, he arose early, according to his widow, and left the house with the excuse that he heard some one in the chicken house. Later Mrs. Enlow observed the brush pile in flames.

RAINCOATS FOR CATTLE

The cattle of Denmark wear overcoats when it rains or the weather is cold, if they are out in the fields. They are kept in the stables day and night for seven months every year and feed out of doors during the day for the five months of the summer. In their grazing they are not allowed to run wild. Each cow has her halter in which is fastened a chain eight feet in length tied to a stake in the ground so that she can feed only to the length of her chain. After she has cropped her circle as clean as though cut by a lawn mower, she moos loudly so that the farmer knows from this signal that it is time to change her location. He then comes out with a maul like that with which one drives steel wedges in splitting logs. He pulls up the stake and leads the cow to a fresh feeding ground, where he pounds the pin down into the ground again. Each animal wears a blanket of canvas covering all of its body but its head, neck and tail and legs below the knees.

AGE WITHOUT GLORY FACES
RICH RED WINE OF BUDAPEST
BUDAPEST.—There is a promise of a bumper wine crop in Hungary, as a result of satisfactory weather conditions. But frontiers on the Czechoslovakian and Serbian sides, and the low purchasing power of the Austrian crown make it highly improbable that much Hungarian wine, including the costly Tokay, highly esteemed by connoisseurs, will ever find its way out of the well-stocked cellars of Budapest.

The Hungarian wine industry is practically ruined by the new political conditions. Czechoslovakia and Serbia will not admit Hungarian wines, because they are wine-producing countries themselves. Austria cannot buy it, because she is too poor, although she was formerly Hungary's chief customer.

Hungarian wine producers have been having a huge surplus on their hands for four years, and they see no way open to them except to continue crowding their cellars. But even that is impossible, as the cellars are already crowded.

FORD NO. 8,000,000 PUT OUT; MILLION MADE IN 6 MONTHS

DETROIT, Mich.—Ford Motor number 8,000,000 went off the assembly line at the Ford Motor company plant here July 11, it became known Thursday, establishing a new million production record.

The last million motors have been produced in just six days less than six months, motor number 7,000,000 having been turned out Jan. 17 of this year. Production at the start of the last million was approximately 4,800 motors a day, and on the increased schedule in effect since has been brought to more than 7,000.

The average for the period was slightly above 6,000 a day for the 149 working days, an average of more than 166,670 a month. Motor number 7,000,000 was produced eight months after number 6,000,000. Increased plant facilities enabled the company to clip two months off the schedule in turning out the last million motors.

BOBBED GIRLS WIN TUG OF WAR AGAINST LONG HAIR

HOT "CRAP" GAME NOT SO WARM AS ITS AFTERMATH

STEUBENVILLE, O.—Twelve of thirteen colored laborers who participated in a crap game at the La Belle Iron works labor camp here are in the mill hospital suffering from burns. The dozen were ranged along one side of a table while the thirteenth, and wielder of the spotted ivory rollers, faced them on the opposite side of the table. One of the twelve grabbed for the "pot" of money. No. 13 reached for a pistol.

As it flashed, twelve men "ducked." All sat on a red hot fuel pipe. Twelve pairs of trousers were ruined and the owners will take their meals standing for some days.

One reason husbands don't get vacations is they stay home to feed the cat and goldfish.

ASK THAT SCHOOLS TEACH HISTORY OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Statement Issued by Head of Women's Organization on Anniversary

STATUS OF WOMAN GREATLY CHANGED IN LAST 75 YEARS

Pays Tribute to Founders of Women's Rights Movement

MADISON, Wis.—Friday marks the 75th anniversary of the first Women's Rights Convention, and in connection with the anniversary Miss L. James of Richmond Center, president of the Wisconsin Women's Progressive Association, has issued a statement calling upon the women of the state to work to the end that the history of women's rights may be taught in connection with the history of our nation.

"There is something fundamental in the fact that our educational system when children are taught the dates of bloody battles and the names of military heroes, but not a word concerning the dates and names of the men and women who have won the world's greatest moral battles with a courage and patience surpassing that of the bravest man who ever donned a uniform," her statement reads.

"There is a vast difference between entering a battle amid the cheers of a tumult and the music of a brass band and entering upon a prolonged fight to the accompaniment of jeers and ridicule.

"When Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Martha C. Wright and Mary Ann McClintock called the first Women's Rights convention for July 19th and 20th in 1848, this was the status of women in America:

"All of a married woman's earnings belonged to her husband."

"He was the sole guardian of the children. He could will the custody of an unborn child away from the mother."

"He had the legal right to beat his wife in moderation."

"There were no free public high schools for girls."

"It was unwomanly to speak in public or to belong to even a temperance society."

"A wife did not own her own clothing, nor even her false teeth."

"She could neither sue or be sued."

"At the Seneca Falls Convention held July 19th and 20th, 1848, the following Declaration of Independence was drawn up and signed:

"That, being invested by the creator with the same capabilities and the same consciousness of responsibility for their exercise, it is demonstrably the right and duty of women, equally with men, to promote every righteous cause by every righteous means; and especially in regard to the great subjects of morals and religion, it is self-evident her right to participate with her brother in teaching them, both in private and in public, by writing or by speaking, by any instrumentalities proper to be used, and in any assembly duly proper to be held; and this being a self-evident truth growing out of the divinely implanted principles of human nature, any custom or authority adverse to it, whether modern or wearing the hoary sanction of antiquity, is to be regarded as a self-evident falsehood, and at war with mankind."

"Heroic sacrifices extending through a period of over 70 years won for women free and equal citizenship."

"Let every woman who today enjoys the right to life, liberty and the guardianship of her own children, pause and consider by whom these rights were won and the price paid for them."

"May the women of the Nation on this, the 75th anniversary of the first Women's Rights Convention, insist that the History of Woman's Rights be taught in connection with the history of our nation."

"Our boys and girls should be urged to read not only the lives of Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson, but also the lives of Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton."

"May Wisconsin women pause long enough today to give thanks for their freedom and remember their own war scarred Equal Rights hero, Rev. Olympia Brown of Racine."

MOTHER OFFERS LIFE TO SAVE KIDS; X DIES

CHICAGO. A young mother threw herself in the way of a speeding truck in a desperate effort to ward the car away from fifteen children she was taking to a picnic.

In spite of her heroism one of the children, her own 9 year old son, was fatally hurt and three others also hurt, were badly bruised.

She herself was crushed cruelly by the truck, but is expected to recover.

The mother is Mrs. Julia Thow. With her in St. Bernard's hospital are her year old son, Joseph, whom she sheltered in her arms as she jumped in the way of the truck; Julia 3 years old, and George, 8 years old. Alfred, the eldest son, died of his injuries.

FRISCO TO DEDICATE SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL WHEN LEGION MEETS

Palace of Legion of Honor Building Built at Cost of a Million

SAN FRANCISCO.—(A. P.)—The California Palace of the Legion of Honor, now being constructed at a cost of $1,000,000 on the crest of Lincoln park overlooking the Golden Gate, will be formally dedicated in memory of the 8,360 California boys who made the supreme sacrifice on the battlefields of France in the world war during the national convention of the American Legion here, October 15-19, according to an announcement by Adolph Spreckels, donor of the memorial.

Exhibition of the works of art donated by the French, Roumanian, Serbian, and Polish governments, and various individuals, which will form a part of the permanent collection to be housed in the memorial building here, are being exhibited in the historic Legion of Honor building on the banks of the Seine, Paris, June 5-July 5, before their removal to San Francisco. The California Palace of the Legion of Honor is a duplicate of the Paris building, and official permission for its duplication was given by the French government. Henri Guillaume, French government architect at the Panama Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in 1915, is the architect.

The memorial, donated under the patronage of President Harding, President Millerand of France, and other leading French and American citizens, is being given to the citizens of California, together with all its art treasures, by Mr. and Mrs. Spreckels.

Among other works of art, the California Palace of the Legion of Honor will house: Seventy-five sculptures of Rodin, gift of Mrs. Alma de Breteville Spreckels; four Gobelin tapestries depicting the life of Jean d'Arc by Jean Paul Laurens, gift of the French government; Marshal Joffre's sword and uniform worn during the crucial days of the first Battle of the Marne, gift of Madame Joffre; 200 sculptures of Arthur Putnam, gift of Mrs. Spreckels; collection of medals from Minnie, gift of French government; collection of Sevres, gift of the French government; 50 sculptures of Riviere, gift of Mrs. Spreckels; eighty war medals depicting the world war, by Pierre Roche, gift of Mrs. Spreckels; collections of the decorations of General Pierre Alexander de Breteville, grand officer of the Legion of Honor, donated by the Marquis Pierre de Breteville, and donations from Marie, Queen of Roumania; Marie, Queen of Serbia; Elizabeth, Queen of Greece, and Cyril, formerly grand duchess of Russia.

In addition to being a memorial to the spirit of international friendship and good will, it is his aim, Mr. Spreckels said, to create a center of art, music, literature, politics, and an international forum for the dissemination of knowledge and the spreading of information of exact conditions among the nations bordering the Pacific ocean.

Enough Bran and good eating

If we hadn't told you that Mapl-Flake is 25% bran, you'd never guess it. Yet there's enough bran in Mapl-Flake to be a harmless, natural, non-habit-forming laxative—to "sweep" the digestive tract.

Mapl-Flake is just the thing for you to eat in the morning—appetizing, full of flavor, and genuinely nourishing. It is rich in body-builders—in the mineral salts of phosphorus, iron and lime. It contains those life-giving vitamins which stimulate the appetite and then feed it.

Mapl-Flake is selected whole wheat, sweetened, flaked, and toasted to a delicious brown. No wonder so many mothers are serving it—and their families never dream there's any bran in it.

$1000 in Prizes for Jingles

Write a four-line jingle telling how good Mapl-Flake is and how good it is for you. First prize, $250—and 165 prizes in all. You have a fine chance to win—especially if you're a Mapl-Flaker. Contest closes August 15, 1923. Send your jingles to the Contest Manager, Armour Grain Company, Chicago, Ill.

EARL OF NORTHESK MARRIED FOLLIES GIRL AT CHICAGO

Jessica Brown Becomes Countess in Ceremony in Lawyer's Office Thursday

CHICAGO. — Jessica Brown, not so long ago the "third from the end in the second row" of the Follies chorus, became the eleventh countess of Northesk at a quarter to 8 Thursday night in the office of her attorney, Frank T. Jordan, 79 West Monroe street. Judge John R. Caverly performed the ceremony which gave David Ludovic George Hopeston Carnegie a Follies girl wife and endowed Jessica Brown with a 270-year old title.

The marriage was delayed an hour and four minutes because of the late arrival of the bride's mother and her white-chapel chaperone, Mrs. A. W. Stark.

Jessica a Bit Nervous

Within the offices of Mr. Jordan there was all the quiet dignity of the blue drawing room of Little Castle, over which Jessica is now mistress. The dancing diva's union with the Scotch earl was far more simple and sheltered than any stroll across the runway in a Follies production. But the girl seemed more nervous as she said "I will" than she ever had been when she took an encore at a theatrical premiere.

The wedding was the only restful interlude in a day of excitement which bewildered even the girl, accustomed to stage confusion and the whirlwinds of matrimonial bliss with her first husband, Cyril DeWitt Reinhardt.

BY-PRODUCTS OF THE SLAUGHTER HOUSE

Enormous developments have been made in recent years in utilizing the by-products of slaughter houses. All blood is collected, tested and converted into cattle food and fertilizers. The greatest care is exercised in the collection of glands, lungs and various organs, and various animal juices. Some of these play a part in the manufacture of water, color pigments and inks, but their most important use is in the preparation of valuable medicines.

Of the products of this type, the most important are pepsin, pancreatin, thyroids, rennet, bismuthated lard, suprarenals and pituitary gland. Pepsin, a valuable specific for indigestion and stomach troubles generally, is prepared from the lining of the pig's stomach. Pancreatin, employed as a medicine and for potentizing the food of infants and invalids, comes from pig's sweetbread. From the thyroid glands of sheep thyroid powder and tablets are prepared and rennet is the curdling ferment from the calf's stomach used so largely in cheese making, and in the preparation of the fast-food table delicacy known as junket.

Suprarenal preparations, made from the glands located just above the kidneys of sheep, are used internally and from the substance is prepared a powerful astringent and heart stimulant called suprarenin, which is worth something like 1,000 pounds per pound, over 130,000 sheep being necessary to produce that weight of suprarenin. Pituitary products, derived from a gland located at the base of the sheep's brain, are of immense service to the medical profession.

OBSERVATIONS ABOUT RED HAIR

An English writer has recorded the following observations about red hair:

"With apologies to my male friends of mine (I cannot remember many) who may have been entitled to the name of Rufus, I am bound to say that I never knew any man who would not have looked better with hair of any other color." Says Professor Saintsbury in "A Study Book."

"On the other hand, red hair in girls and women is often—I think much more often than not—perfectly charming. Black-dust red, with no gloss, is ugly enough, no doubt; but then all hair—except a very peculiar kind of black—requires gloss. Every other shade, from the lightest nuttiness to the darkest autumn chestnut, can be beautiful. This I have known, and long before it, the Greeks. The Romans did not like red hair, but the Romans were people of very doubtful taste in many points of aesthetics."

A TOTAL POPULATION OF TWO

An islet with a population of two is disclosed by the British census report for the Orkney group of islands. It is Holm of Grimsetter in the Bay of Forth. Other islands in the group run it very close. Hunda Island, 10 miles south of Kirkwall, has three, and Copinsay, off the southern coast, has seven. Three highhouse islands, Skerry, Aukeray and Hellas Holm, have three, four and six inhabitants respectively. The population of the main island is 14,753, or more than half that of the whole group. The census revealed the fact that the total population is 24,411, the smallest since the census was established, the next lowest being 24,445 in 1901, the first census year. It was at its highest in 1861, when the figures were 32,305. Since 1861, it has steadily declined.

This Bird Has Been Rediscovered. Some Canadian Moose were liberated several years ago in New Zealand and recently an expedition was sent out to make observation as to the number and condition of these animals and one of the results of the work is reported to have been the finding of several specimens of the Noddy, a bird supposed by naturalists to have been long extinct. The bird is the size of a goose and the color of a water hen and the discovery is regarded as very important. Up to the present find the last one seen was in 1898.

Swimming on Your Back Is Easy Once You've Mastered the Crawl

BY LYBA M. SHEFFIELD

Director of Swimming, University of California Summer Session, and Co-Author of "Swimming Simplified"

THIRD ARTICLE—SWIMMING ON THE BACK

SAN FRANCISCO.—Swimming on the back is one of the most restful strokes, and at the same time easy to learn. The beginner will do well to master it after he has learned the elementary crawl before he tries any other face-down swimming strokes.

To get the proper arm motion, stand in shallow water (three or four feet) with your arms straight down on each side of the body, palms touching the thighs.

Next raise your hands upward, fingers pointing down, elbows back, keeping the fingers constantly in contact with the seams of your bathing suit.

When your hands reach the arm-pits, extend them slowly to the sides, hands about the level of the shoulders and palms down.

Extend Legs

Then pull the hands down forcibly to the starting position.

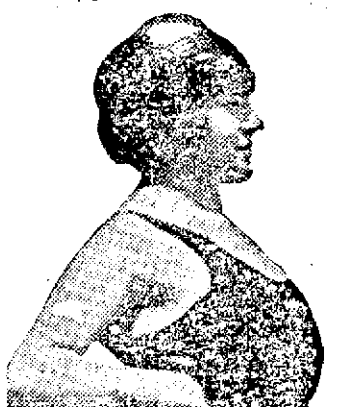

While doing this exercise, breathe naturally. The leg stroke for back swimming can be practiced either at home lying on a bed, or at the tank. I will explain it for practice at the tank, but you will have no trouble adapting it should you prefer to practice at home.

Sit on the edge of the tank, legs straight and extended well out over the water.

the water, ankles and knees touching. Then, always keeping the heels touching, slowly bring the feet up by slightly bending and separating the knees—about three or four inches.

Next, slowly separate the feet about 12 inches, at the same time straightening the knees. Finish the stroke by forcibly bringing the legs together, legs straight and ankles touching.

To complete the back swimming stroke, this arm and leg motion must be combined with the correct push-off.

Face the side of the tank, grasping a support near the water's surface with both hands, about shoulder-width apart.

Place the soles of both feet flat against the side of the tank between the hands and close to the surface of the water.

Lower your head backward until the ears are submerged and slowly push away, holding your breath. Don't push away forcibly or you are likely to give yourself a ducking. As you push away, your body straightens so that you finish with your head lying back in the water, your body extended and your arms along the side seams of your bathing suit.

Try the pushoff several times, retaining standing position as from floating, then combine it with the armstroke, and finally with the arm and leg stroke.

If you ever get exhausted while swimming and do not want to stop forward progress by floating, use this stroke. It is so easy to execute that it will give you the necessary opportunity to rest while still going forward in the water.

Next—How to dive.

YOUNG DAUGHTERY GETS A NEW START IN LIFE IN CHICAGO

Blames Wife for Incarceration in Sanitarium from Which He Escaped

CHICAGO. — Maj. Draper M. Daugherty, son of United States Attorney General Harry Daugherty, intends to stick on the job he has held for the last month selling coal to big Chicago industrial plants. But despite his intention to become a permanent resident of Chicago he contemplates a visit to Washington Court House, O., soon. His uncle, M. S. Daugherty, resides there and had a hand in sending his nephew to Stamford Hall, the Connecticut sanitarium from which Daugherty escaped June 17.

"That's the thing I don't quite understand," he said. "My uncle has had charge of my affairs for some time, and that's the first time he ever did anything like that for me."

Blames Wife for Trouble

The young former major blames his wife for the whole affair, but he says he is puzzled over the way "she put it over" the rest of his family.

"They suggested that I go to the sanitarium for a couple of weeks to rest," he said. "When I got there I found it was intended to be for a year."

His connection with the case of Dorothy King, New York artist's model, whose death still is a mystery, brought most of his troubles, he says. "But I'm through with the booze," he said. "I have been given an opportunity here by sincere friends, and I intend to avail myself of it to the fullest extent."

AMERICAN OUTDOOR GAMES ARE POPULAR WITH CHINESE BOYS

Baseball and Football Becoming General Among School-boys in Orient

NEW YORK.—Chinese schoolboys playing baseball on the lot, or lining up for football practice in the school yard, would probably make an unexpected picture with which to replace our American fancies of oriental children in always staid and decorative poses.

But these are the games which Chinese boys do play, more than any others, according to Dr. Hou-Ki-Hu of Nankin, China, who is studying in this country on a fellowship of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation. As part of his field work toward obtaining the degree of Doctor of Public Health from Johns Hopkins University, Dr. Hu is now engaged in making a study of the work of the American Child Health Association, a national organization working for the improvement of methods and standards of child health care, with a staff of health and educational experts engaged in research and practical demonstration throughout the country.

"Before American games came with the Americans into China," Dr. Hu says, "Chinese children did not play—at least not in your sense of play. My grandfather and my father did not play games, and the games I learned when I was a boy in school were American sports."

"Little girls in China used to sew and learn household tasks, but they had no active games. Now Chinese children play like children in this country. They have learned how in the American schools, and through American workers who have brought your kind of play to the children of China."

MUCH ILLITERACY IN MEXICO

It has been shown by a careful census that in some districts and in some whole states more than 90 per cent of the population can neither read nor write. Illiteracy is more prevalent in southern and southeastern Mexico than in the more northern part of the country. Far more people can read and write in the states bordering the United States than in the ones farther south. This fact is thought to be due to the educational influence of the neighboring Americans. To overcome this condition, construction of 3,000 elementary schools, which will involve a cost of more than $8,000,000 when completed, is under way. The schools are to be finished within a year.

"WANDERING DAUGHTERS" SHOWING AT RIVOLI

To make a picture dealing with runaway girls entertaining and thoroughly pleasing without being too critical, too preachy or using risqué scenes, to illustrate the author's thoughts, is no easy task for any director, but in "Wandering Daughters," a First National attraction showing at the Rivoli theatre now, James Young has accomplished the feat with unusual grace.

"Wandering Daughters" deals with exactly what the title suggests, but Dana Turner, its author, had a number of unique and original sequences to put into the story and Director Young not only seemingly has taken full advantage of the story's possibilities, but has also used his broad knowledge of screen technique and public interest to develop many scenes just about as entertainingly as one could reasonably expect.

Marguerite de La Motte and Marjorie Daw, two beautiful young players of interesting contrast in type, have been given the principal roles in the picture and acquit themselves creditably.

AT THE MAJESTIC TODAY
"Golden Dreams," changed and adapted for the screen from Zane Grey's story of the same title, is one of the best productions based upon Zane Grey novels.

It is now playing at the Majestic. The photograph is checkful of action, incident, color, adventure and romance, with a good sprinkling of comedy, and its exterior have never been surpassed for natural beauty. Producer Hampton, his directors, cameramen and the players were taken to Mexico to film this story which is located in a mythical Spanish state, Chinora. All of the exteriors were taken there and the cameramen obtained many "shots" that are scenic masterpieces.

STRAND TODAY

Viola Dana got some real thrills from "June Madness," her new Metro photoplay. One of the scenes provided for an automobile pursuit between Miss Dana in one car and a persistent lover in another.

The story provided that Miss Dana was to travel sixty miles an hour, which was slightly faster than the railroad train at her side. The idea was to have the star dash in front of the train, so that the pursuing car would be blocked on the other side of the track. All went well, and Miss Dana had advanced sufficiently in front of the train to cut across the tracks when a heavy truck came down from a hidden side-path. It narrowly escaped hitting the star's machine, but it hemmed her between the train and the track. "That was a narrow escape," said Viola after it was all over. "If I hadn't seen that truck in time, this June Madness might have ended in July Sadness."

"LIGHTS OF NEW YORK"

TEACHES STRONG LESSON
Today Manager Cooper, of the Casino Theatre, is bringing to local audiences one of the best pictures of the current season. It is the latest William Fox production, "Lights of New York." The picture deals with life in the greater city and carries a wonderful lesson.

Wherever the production has been shown it has been acclaimed by critics as one of the great pictures of the day. The story is divided into two parts. The first deals with the life of a boy born on the East Side of New York, and the other with a man from the better section of the metropolis. The experiences of both sides of life are vividly portrayed by an exceptionally good cast which includes Marc MacDermott, Clarence Nordstrom, Marguerite Seldon, Frank Courter, Florence Short and Charles Gerard.

OVER 3 MILLIONS PAID IN YEAR TO INJURED WORKMEN

Injuries to 16,705 Workers are Compensated Under Workmen's Compensation Act

MADISON, Wis.—A report by the industrial commission shows 16,705 injuries compensated under the workmen's compensation act during 1922. These cases comprise 130 deaths, one case of permanent total disability, 3,602 cases of permanent partial disability and 14,922 cases of temporary total disabilities.

When these 16,705 injuries are weighted for time losses, it is found that the time loss aggregates 2,642,422 working days, which is equivalent to a full 300 working day year by 2,605 men. The wage loss incurred through these injuries is about $10,724,000. The total compensation indemnity and medical aid benefits paid in these cases amounted to $2,156,958.

Wisconsin has been stirred by this great industry toll of accidental injuries and occupational diseases. The state has from time to time called in the assistance of employers, engineers, labor representatives and safety workers and has established minimum safety standard for industrial operations or building construction, for mines and quarries, for fire hazards, for factory illumination, etc. The results of these efforts show a large reduction in the number of fatal accidents and the number of injuries that leave serious impairments for life.

In 1922 only 2,908 injuries or 17 per cent of all accidents occurred on machinery. Since nearly all machines in the state are equipped with guards for belts, pulleys and other danger points, these accidents were not usually of a very serious character. Two thousand two hundred or 13 per cent of all injuries were due to falls of persons. Workers fell from machines and boilers, from piles, from benches, boxes, chairs and tables, from stairs and balconies, from loading platforms, from scaffolds, bridges, boats, docks, dams, etc.

Under workmen's compensation injured workmen are entitled to the full cost of medical attendance and treatment reasonably required to re-

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—Two months ago First Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach of the New York City police department went to Europe for new ideas as to how a policeman should conduct himself. He returned with one. Here it is: "Be more courteous."

MANY LABOR DEMANDS MET BY LEGISLATURE REPORTS FEDERATION

Not all Requests Fulfilled But Labor as a Whole Fared Well Says Committee

MADISON, Wis.—While the recent legislature did not meet every anticipation of organized labor, it did more than had been accomplished by any single session in the last ten years, according to the report of the legislative committee of the State Federation of Labor submitted at the annual convention of the federation here.

Some constructive measures were enacted into law and many objectionable measures were defeated, the report states. Of the fifty measures considered by the legislature, 39 percent have either been enacted into law or received favorable compromise, the report adds.

The labor interests in co-operation with farm organizations succeeded in obtaining a majority in the state assembly, but were not as successful in obtaining a majority in the senate favorable to the working people, the report continues. "The legislature as a whole, could not be termed a real progressive body. The majority in the senate lived up to its reputation of conservatism and seemed to take a keen delight in defeating progressive legislation. The assembly was vacillating and uncertain, at times voting as real progressives, then again displaying the most reactionary tendencies in opposing wholesale legislation."

"However, labor's side of all questions was well presented before the committee and the legislature as a whole and we feel that the members are better informed of the aims and purposes of the labor movement than they were before the session."

NEARLY 200 U-BOATS ARE LOST BY GERMANY DURING GREAT WAR

WASHINGTON—One hundred and seventy-eight German submarines were "lost in action" during the war, according to an official report just received by the Navy Department. The loss in personnel is given as 5,364, of whom 515 were officers. These figures are believed by officials here to be the first authentic information on this subject to be obtained. Four years were consumed, the author of the report asserts, in checking official records and interviewing members of the German admiralty who had charge of under-sea craft. Depth charges accounted for 37 submarines, fixed mines for 36, fights with enemy submarines 20, engine and other trouble 14, torpedo boats destroyed, and subchasers 13, accidental ramming eight, armed fishing craft six, airplane (bombing) six, and submarine nets six. Twenty-one submarines were demolished or otherwise disposed of to prevent their capture by the enemy. Three were sunk by regular patrol vessels of the enemy three by armed auxiliaries, two by cruisers and two by artillery fire from the shore. One was sunk by a liner at the entrance to the British main base of Scapa Flow, the famous U-29 under Capt. Weddigen.

A chart accompanying the report shows that 56 of the under-sea boats were lost in the English channel, 26 in the North Sea, 16 in the Mediterranean, 16 on the East Coast of England, 12 off the Dutch Coast, three near Heligoland, two in Scapa Flow, and the remainder in far-separated spots in the world's oceans.

Of the boats interned before the German fleet was delivered to the allies, the report says, five were sold to Spain and two to Holland while 14 were demolished.

Inspection of the boats of shipbuilding firms holding contracts showed that 281 submarines had been delivered and 137 were under construction when the armistice was signed.

Ross, private, Company E, One Hundred Twelfth Infantry, who died on the Vesic river in August, 1918, the "first" body buried here three years ago, was identified as that of Bird E. Naie, a member of Ross' company and who was killed in the same dug-out.

YOUTH HELD AT MADISON NOT ST. LOUIS MURDERER

MADISON, Wis.—The youth held here on a charge of stealing an automobile is not Tony Massud, wanted for the slaying of two St. Louis policemen. A statement received from St. Louis police shows that the man is Tony Forbes, whose name appeared on the St. Louis records for a minor charge. Forbes has changed his plea to not guilty and will be given a trial.

BRITISH COMMISSION SAYS FRENCH BATTLE SCARS ARE VANISHING

Nation Making a Magnificent Effort to Restore Ravages of War Says Report

LONDON.—(A. P.)—France of today, like the France of 1871, is making a magnificent effort by hard work to restore the ravages of war, according to an official report of the British Department of Overseas Trade. The report is the work of the commercial counselor of the British embassy in Paris, J. R. Cahill, and is painstaking and exhaustive. The general conclusions of the report are:

The present economic position of France is strong. Her industrial population is fully employed, and her output in most fields of production is only limited by shortage of man-power. The industrial reconstruction of the devastated areas is fast approaching completion. The report states that the destroyed or damaged coal mines are increasing their output with improved technical equipment. The great woolen and cotton works are kept going to the full extent of the labor at their disposal. The great agricultural areas of wheat and beet root, the chief crops of northern France, will soon approximate the pre-war areas. Ports, waterways, railways and roads have been and are being improved. Water power, the report continues, is being systematically turned to account. New resources in ores, coal, potash and oil have been developed. There has been advance in industrial organization in a marked fashion in the chemical, electrical, metallurgical, engineering, aluminum and other industries. A discernible through French industry as a whole, French foreign trade in weight has already surpassed pre-war figures. Fine results have been obtained by hard work in the devastated regions. Of 8,166,684 devastated acres, 7,447,297 have been cleared of projectiles, trench work and barbed wire; 19,920 factories have been rebuilt out of 22,160. Of nearly 4,941,000 acres of devastated agricultural land, more than 1,235,000 have been put under the plough. The main railway system has been repaired, nearly all the waterways have been made navigable, and of the 38,450 miles of devastated roads, 19,743 have been restored to traffic and 8,671 have been improved.

NEENAH TEACHERS GET $50 PAY RAISE THIS YEAR
NEENAH, Wis.—Teachers here will receive on the average $50 each more in salary next year, according to an announcement by the school board, which has completed hiring teachers. There are 1,861 children of school age in the city, an increase of seventy-one over last year, according to a recent census. During the last school year the total enrollment in public schools here was 1,412, while the average daily attendance was 1,169.

THE EARMARKS OF AGE

How long ago was the circular saw invented? If you aspire to become a collector of genuine antique furniture you should know the answer to the question. The circular saw was invented as far back as the year 1777. Therefore, no piece of seventeenth-century furniture should bear the tell-tale curved lines that a bent tooth in a circular saw makes. The maker of false antique furniture may copy the parative ease, but he has difficulty in giving it the appearance of genuine age. Boring wormholes is now regarded as dangerous; other methods of aging are preferred. For example, a gentleman who was visiting the shop of a prosperous country dealer in antique furniture noticed several rabbits inside an interesting carved coffer. "You know more about such things than I do," he remarked to mistaken that is an original sixteenth century coffer. How in' the world can you put it to such a use?" "It will be a fifteenth-century coffer when the rabbits have finished with it," was the cool reply.

MODEL GOVERNMENT IN ALASKA

Alaska, now in the beginning of its ment, is unique among the states and territories in that it has a comfortable cash balance in the treasury and no indebtedness to meet. It is one government that has practiced "pay as you go," never issuing a bond or showing a deficit between revenue and operating expense. In these days of government machinery Alaska shines as a model of simplicity with practically no freak legislation. Its gov-

COMMONS VOTES TO STRENGTHEN BRITISH BASE AT SINGAPORE

Discuss Possibility of War Between Britain and Japan in the Future

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—Renewed frank discussion of the possibility of war with Japan in the future came to an end in the house of commons Thursday night with the passage, under closure, by a vote of 217 to 130 of the naval estimates providing for strengthening the naval base at Singapore.

Most of the opposition came from liberal and labor members, who argued that the project was not in spirit with the Washington conference and that its completion would impel resumption of competition in naval armament and row the seeds of war. Some opponents conceded, nevertheless, that the spread of Japanese immigration might be a source of difficulty between Great Britain and Japan a generation hence.

There were also countered by Lieut.-Col. L. S. Amery, the first lord of the admiralty, who contended that all the delegates at Washington understood that Great Britain reserved the right to strengthen the Singapore base and that meridian 110 was specified in the treaty limiting the area of its application to exclude Singapore from the terms of the agreement. He describes the fortification as defensive.

BRINGING UP FATHER

NIX ON FLAPPER TRADE VERDICT OF MADISON BARBER

MADISON, Wis.—One might think that the advent of bobbed hair with the frequent trimming and neck clipping it entails would be welcomed by barbers as a source of increased revenue.

But not so, if one may believe a leading Madison tonsorial artist whose shop is located in a building where many flappers are employed and whose chair is frequently occupied by members of the gentler sex.

"Of course, we don't object to the additional patronage, but the average girl is more trouble than she's worth," he said. "She is not accustomed to sitting in a barber chair and she doesn't know how to act. She won't keep still long enough for the barber to do a good job on her hair. She is afraid her hair is being cut too short, or not short enough, and seems to think she knows more about hair cutting than the barber himself. Just when the barber gets her hair arranged just right, she suddenly runs her fingers through it and messes it up. Then the barber has to comb it all over again, causing much waste of time.

"So I say nix on the female trade."
